TOTEM 1966

SOUTH SIDE HIGH SCHOOL

FORT WAYNE, INDIANA

VOLUME 44

Some study, some talk, some relax; but every Archer enjoys the early morning gatherings in "his" section in the gym.

School doesn't seem too bad at all for those students who can spend their lunch hours outdoors in the sunshine.

Faces,
 Sharp stone edges,
 Against a blurred background,
 Are they real?

Joy and sorrow,
 Like phantoms, flee across masks
 as if afraid to leave a trace of truth
 — Another year gone by —

Faces,
 minds, ideas, things,
 Or lack of these,
 Are forever;
 Forever lonely, forever blank,
 Forever laughing.
 Faces,
 always,
 But somehow never existing at all.

Faces,
 Flowing into one,
 Disappearing in short years,
 Are you
 real?

Nothing could be more exciting than a blazing bonfire on a cold night to celebrate the City Series Football Championship.

Cafeteria lunch hours provide comforted hunger pains, relaxation, conversation, and fun for the Archers every day.

Ice cream tastes mighty good, and giddy chatter is great for the tired Archers after school.

Bob Hatcher turns in money to Totem bookhead Marla McEachern, while Becky Teague checks the details.

John McCallister awaits his entry to the pep session as Lillie Wong.

School is finally out; and even though the brains may be tired, the good ole Archer feet are more than pleased to carry the South Siders down the steps and on homeward after a long day of study, extra-curricular work, and pleasure.

Basketball games highlighted South's activities this year, but this game was to be no ordinary one. As usual, the Archers fought all the way and, this time, almost caught the tough, first-place Central Tigers.

Quiet study is well maintained under the watchful eyes of Mrs. Dorothy Arnold with the help of her service workers.

Though Mr. Richard Bussard seems quite puzzled, Mr. Robert Weber may have a good answer.

It must be another Archer touchdown; so South's happy fans willingly give the team a noisy cheer.

Formerly the Senior Bench, this seat now serves as a lunch-time meeting place for members of all classes.

Bob Buckley is "Sixteen Going on Seventeen," and his duet partner, Julie Buchheit, seems to love him for it.

It is a proud day for all football and track boys receiving letters and letter jackets from Mr. Germand.

So what if Greg McDowell is a junior in high school, playing safety patrol in front of school is still fun.

It is Sectional time again, so the seniors get together to portray roundballers, cheerleaders, villains, Batman, and Robin to arouse some school spirit. It was a sorry day for villains, but a happy one for Archers.

"Come on now, yell" scream cheerleaders Tricia Hunt, Edie Hughes, Janeen Badgley, Sally Reitdorf, and Ann Spear.

Another exciting play, so fans Mike Cassady and Greg Scott give the Archers an encouraging "go"!

Willie Long is mighty happy spending the evening with hat and hatchet as Vesta's George Washington.

It's not chow time yet on "The Twelfth Night," so seniors and teachers must entertain themselves for a while. However, they are sure that the "Johnson Family" and Mr. R. Nelson Snider, guest speaker, will be there in plenty of time.

South's fans don't mind waiting to board the bus at all, knowing that they will be able to see the great roundballers.

Here is the "Archer Door to Victory!" and the mighty, mighty Archer team possesses the only key.

Looks as though Mike Danley just might be in trouble, and Ann Westerman doesn't hesitate to tell him so.

The Archer fans love every basketball game, but this one with Warsaw was especially exciting.

"We must strike" screams elf leader Greg Scott to his fellow elves. And they did, but soon went back to their work helping Santa prepare for Christmas in the annual Christmas assembly given by the Assemblies Workshop.

Sue Strehlow, guide for the "Johnsons", gives a hilarious introduction for them before their appearance on the stage.

Ivy Day Queen of 1965, Cindy Osborne, reigns over her court before the traditional planting of the ivy by seniors.

"All these people, but where are my friends?" thinks senior Kay Dickey as she stares through the crowd.

There isn't a brighter place to end the day than the chemistry lab for service worker Joy Bright.

These Archers just don't quite know what to do while waiting for another peppy cheer to begin.

Hi-Y bus trips are always fun, relaxing, and successful for all the mighty Archer fans.

Janeen Badgley really likes that vote for the juniors; but Mary Ann Simmons, Ann Spear, and Debbie Rothberg disagree.

Havoc such as this was typical at Miller's at noon and particularly following the end of afternoon classes.

Sally Reitdorf is crowned Homecoming Queen as Chuck Nelson, Stan Pfeiffer, Toya O'Hora, and Chris Bandemer look on.

Sheryl Nelson and Julie Inskip are quite absorbed in the cafeteria "noon news".

Darryl Jones smilingly enjoys the company of Ann Spear, Tricia Hunt, and some mysterious Archer on a Hi-Y trip.

Sally Reitdorf and Bev Gouloff are unable to hold back their excitement following the victory over Garrett in Regionals.

"Street Scene" would be an appropriate title for this common view outside school after seventh period.

Varsity cheerleader Edie Hughes wears the green victory arrow at one of the football pep sessions in the fall.

Seniors John McCallister and Stanton Sachs appear to be mildly pleased following one of South's football victories.

Willie Long feels ecstatic after the Regional victory. John Leakey, Mike White, and Mr. Porky Holt share his happiness.

South Siders may wear white socks; but from the looks of this dance scene, they wear colorful everything else. All of the annual dances were sponsored by the same clubs, and a few new dances were also supported by the student body.

South Side's building has a certain beauty seen only by the few who walk by at the right time of the morning.

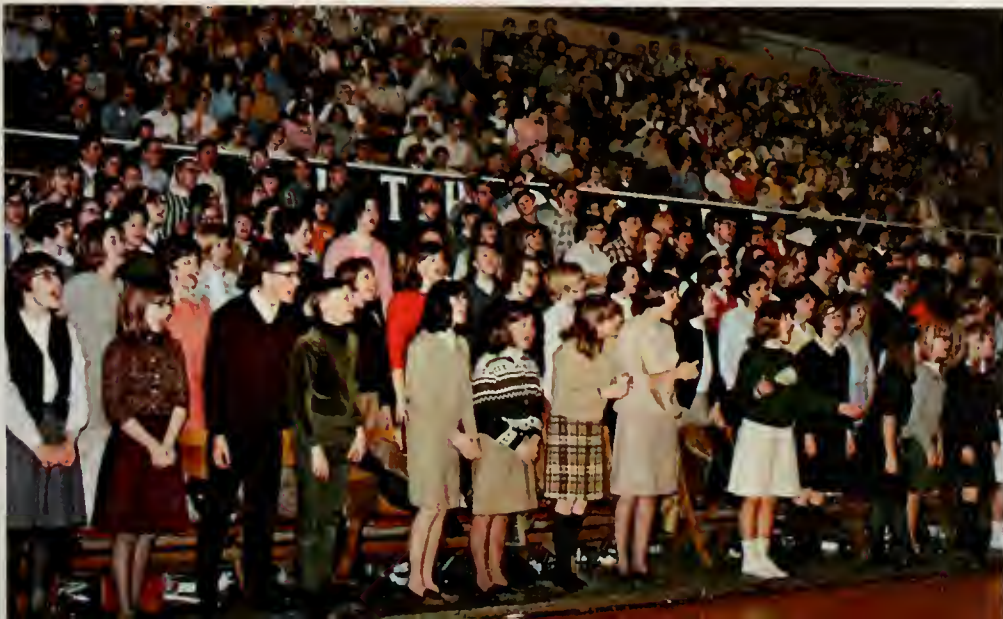

Steve Goldstein and Diane Arnold, Editor and Associate Editor of the Totem work hard on the opening section.

Archer roundball co-captains John Leakey and Willie Long proudly exhibit the trophy South won in the Sectionals.

Chuck Nelson cuts off a well-deserved piece of the netting after the Sectional Championship was won by the Archers.

Everybody screams "go-o-o-o" in the tightly-packed Archer cheering section at one of the exciting Coliseum games.

We learn
Only privately
What each mind
Can and will absorb.
The classroom,
A meeting place,
But also
A guide.
What are classes?
A barrage
Of facts,
Equal to:
A brick wall
That is rarely held together
By mortar.
And so,
We have our building blocks
But how can we build with them?

Academic

English Students Analyze Literature, Study Drama,

Hour-long book reports are an important part of senior English classes. Special English students Melinda Watson and Tim Byers help Diana Wickliffe report on Les Misérables by reading aloud certain passages to the class.

Give Hour-Long, Write Term Paper, Learn Grammar

Striving to obtain a more concrete knowledge of the fundamentals of the English language, South Side students developed essays, themes, reports, and short stories. After many hours of grammatical drill, they hopefully formed acceptable papers.

While the sophomores studied "Our Town," "Silas Marner," and "Julius Caesar," the juniors conquered "Beowulf" and "Macbeth." Seniors developed their skills by analyzing poetry, short stories, essays, and drama. The experience gained from these analogies helped students meet the challenge of their hour-long book reports.

Many students had the opportunity to increase their rate of reading and comprehension through developmental reading courses. With the use of new equipment, the students increased their vocabulary and improved their reading techniques.

Whether writing themes, research papers, or hour-longs, the main purpose of the student was to gain a better understanding of the English language and to properly use it to convey ideas and thoughts. A saying that might be worthwhile remembering was once said by Pericles: "A man who has the knowledge but lacks the power clearly to express it, is no better off than if he never had any ideas at all."

Barb Simmons looks puzzled as she studies The Prologue to The Canterbury Tales in Old English.

"You must know the difference between denotation and connotation of words in poetry," lectures Mr. Ronald Gersmehl.

Mrs. Evelyn Spray checks on the progress of Jeff Levy in a developmental reading class.

Students Gain Interest In Government, Economics,

As the social and political problems of our society and our world become more immediate, students find that they need a stronger foundation in the history of America and the world. It is this type of foundation that South Side's Social Studies Department strived to present to all its students.

Besides all the important names and dates in general history, the Social Studies Department attempted to impress sophomores with the why and how of history and the reasons behind the rise and fall of ancient civilizations.

In United States history, students applied their knowledge of world events to the specific area of our American heritage. By studying the principles on which our country was founded, our Industrial Revolutions, our Civil War, and U.S. involvement in the World Wars, students grasped a better understanding of the growth and prosperity of America.

As seniors, the students moved on to more selective areas of study. Special emphasis was given to the Constitution in Government 1. and to our nation's foreign policy in Government 2. The American standard of living was presented in sociology in an attempt to help the students to better comprehend today's complex social problems. The Economics Department stressed the importance of a sound national and world economy.

Having covered these progressive courses of study, the graduate hoped that he would, with this basic knowledge of world political history and philosophy, be able to serve his country as a responsible adult.

It is research time for Government II students Jeff Levy and John Charles; so they have questions for Mr. Bogardus.

Seniors studying government learn the fundamentals of state, local, and federal government from Dr. Carl Bickley.

Sociology, U.S. History

A survey of the world's history is taught in the general course by Miss Margaret Graham.

Mr. Gary Crawford aids Senior Larry Popoff in his first study of sociology, the science of society.

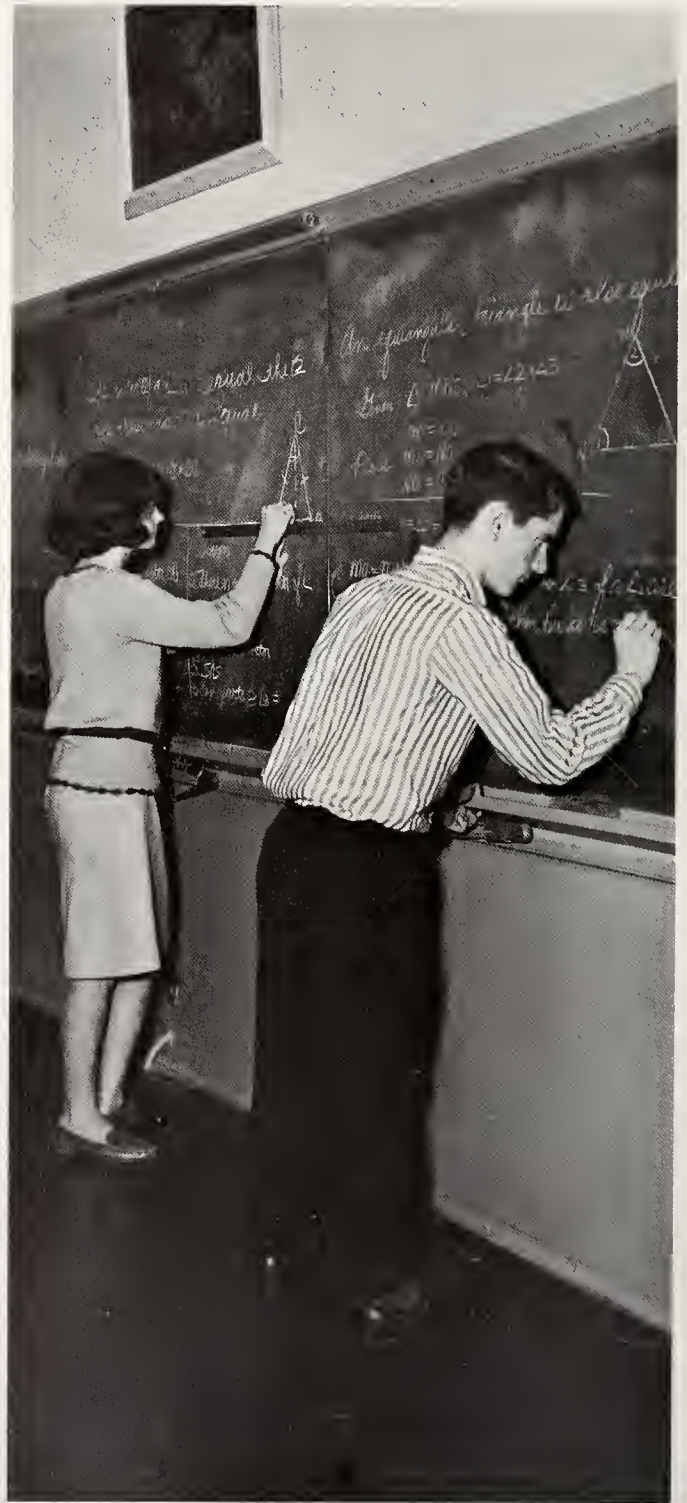

United States history students are keeping abreast of the present by studying the past, from the discovery of America to the 1964 election. Here Mr. Don Locke discusses current events with a junior class in room 28.

Mathematicians Logically

Stan Hamilton is being given some early-morning help on a trigonometry problem by his teacher, Mr. Richard Sage.

Geometry students Cindy Gidley and Warren Cole work to logically prove geometric theorems and corollaries.

Mr. Robert Petty gives help to Holly Trier as she proves a geometry theorem before the class.

Prove Theorems, Plot Graphs, Solve For Unknowns

The various mathematics courses offered not only manipulations of numbers, but gave students the experience of clear, rational thought. From proving the Pythagorean Theorem to adding columns of figures, South Side students used mathematics in algebra, geometry, and trigonometry.

In plane and solid geometry, the students had to master theorems, corollaries, and assumptions to be able to utilize them in the explanations of mathematical relations between lines, angles, and solids. Plane geometry covered basic logic, while solid geometry delved deeper into the world of Euclid.

In advanced algebra, the students used basic operations and expressions of simple arithmetic and algebra, with the combination of gargantuan polynomials, crooked graphs, and quadratic equations of two unknowns.

Trigonometry greeted the student with its problems of determining functions, co-functions, and logarithms. The students found their "log" tables were indispensable in determining measurements of triangles.

The department's program of special classes offered the more mathematically inclined student the opportunity to move ahead.

Besides being important in the fields of science, homemaking, and engineering, mathematics gives students their first real challenge in the field of thinking and approaching a situation in an organized manner.

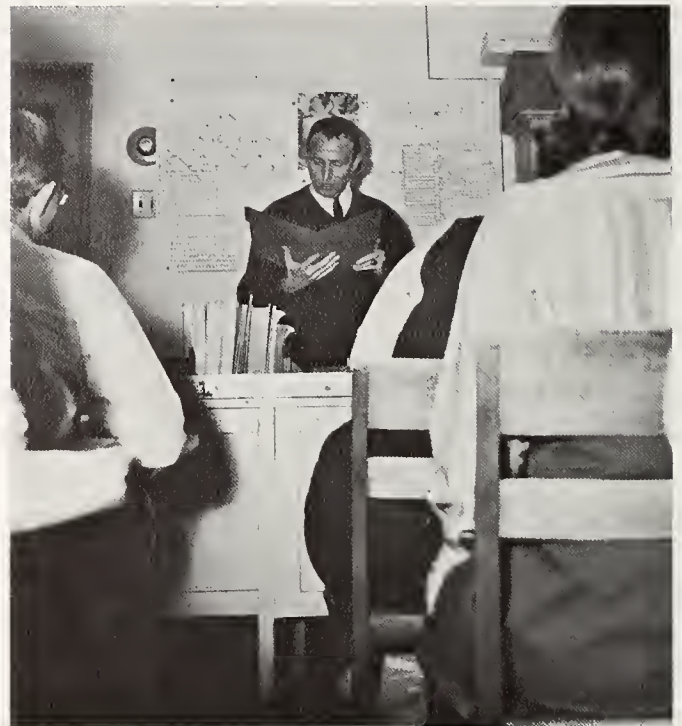

Special math students Phillip Ruhl, Janice Schmitz, and Tom Theye examine geometric models used in classes of plane and solid geometry with Mrs. Mildred Luse, their teacher. The models illustrate basic geometric principles.

As typing students practice to develop speed and accuracy, Mr. Ralph Boling checks their work.

Bookkeeping, Typing, Law,

Mr. Robert Kelly lectures to a business law class on advertising and customer relations.

Students in Business Education received excellent training in their classes due to the fact that every effort was made by the faculty to keep up with rapidly changing business trends.

Stenographic students received competent training for secretarial jobs by taking dictation regularly, and transcribing it by typing.

Business English specialized in the various problems that a secretary might face in her vocation, such as spelling, punctuation, mathematics, and word usage. Secretarial practice included the fundamentals of filing and the operation of business machines.

In business law, students learned to draw up various types of contracts. Business organization and management classes dealt with organizations and operation of small business. The general business students gained an over-all view of the needs in the business world.

Marketing taught the student valuable information on purchasing and budgeting. Here they pondered over consumer problems and their different aspects.

By this program, including text study, drill work, and actual business contracts, the business students received valuable experience in preparation for careers as business executives, salesmen, clerks, and secretaries in our expanding business world.

Shorthand Offered To All Kelly Business Students

Mr. Leon Dolby explains to his students the proper procedure for using an adding machine.

Mr. Stanley Post checks the work of bookkeeping students as they practice balancing accounts.

Shorthand students find that taking rapid dictation from Mr. Ernest Walker is no easy task. Daily drills help students acquire the skill and accuracy that will be demanded of them if they hold good secretarial jobs in the future.

Journalists, Speakers Learn Better Communication

Stan Phillips, with the aid of Miss Anne White, finds mistakes in a newspaper during journalism class.

Students in the Speech Department this year endeavored to learn the fundamental skills of communication and expression of thought.

By giving many basic types of orations, the students fulfilled the aim of the course, to increase self-confidence. Embarrassing moments in front of the class were part of the sometimes hard-to-accept learning process. At the end of the year the student discovered that he had some of the traits of a poised speaker — facility of movement, alertness of mind, and a “selling” quality to his voice.

In the Journalism Department the student became acquainted with the running of a newspaper while attempting to better his own style.

Writing news stories, editorials, and visiting the Fort Wayne Newspapers were a few of the activities tackled by the class. The students read high school newspapers to learn good and bad journalism; the South Side Times was examined in detail as one example.

Thus, this course of study made the student aware of the many different methods employed by one of the greatest news media in the world.

“To be, or not to be.” That may be the question, but Mr. Robert N. Storey still looks pleased at the progress of Rosalie Shanebeck as she delivers one of many speeches practiced by the class throughout the year.

At South Side, physical fitness is stressed through vigorous exercise, group participation, and individual activity.

Instructor Mr. Clair Motz sees that his students strengthen themselves with the familiar "pushup."

Physical Fitness Stressed Through Gym And Dance

Activities designed to help physical and recreational needs and emphasis on mental and social aspects of living underlay the physical education department this year. The boys' classes accomplished this goal under five main categories. Conditioning included rhythmic exercises and running. Tap football, basketball, softball, soccer, and giant volleyball comprised the team games and relays. Self-testing was conducted on stunts such as push-ups and rope climbing, and gymnastics included tumbling and jumping on the trampoline.

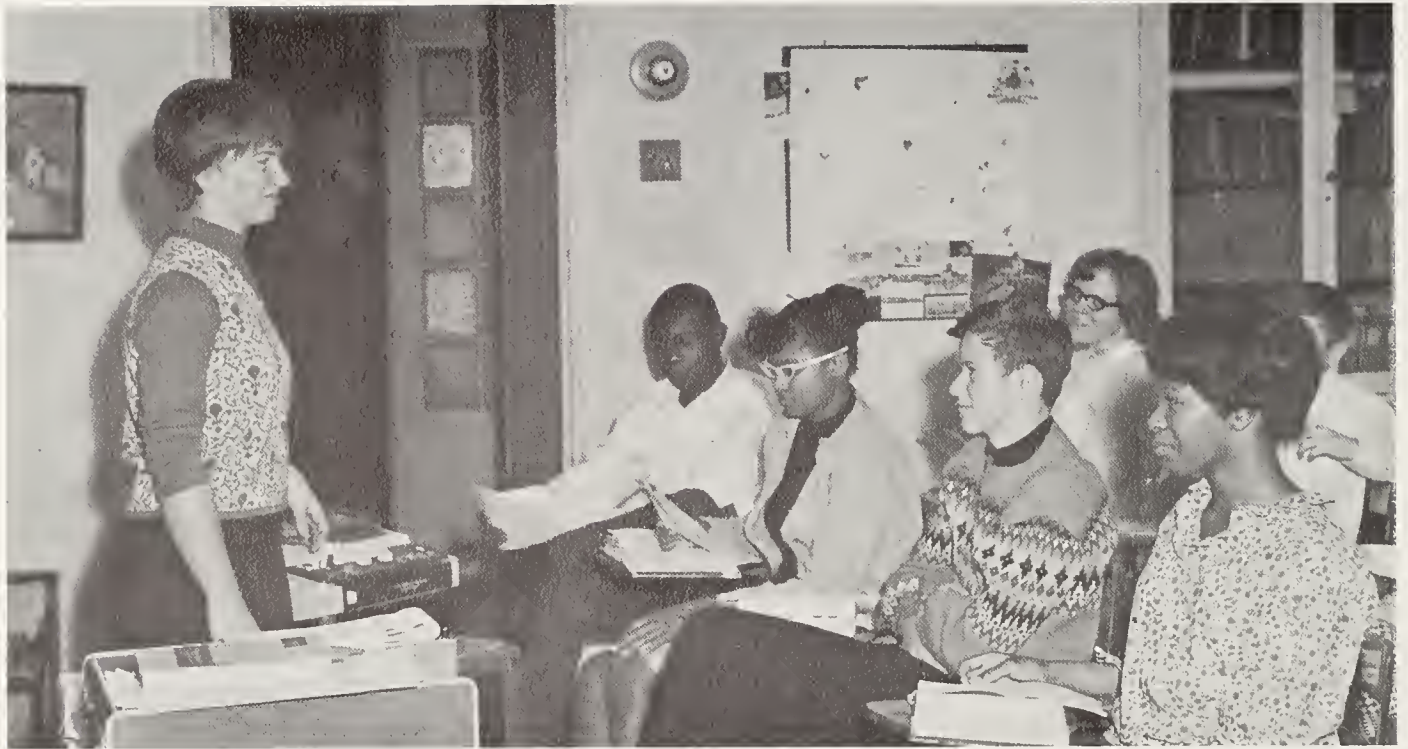

The girls accomplished their goal through dance and gym. In the gym classes, the first semester included speedball, basketball, and volleyball, while the second semester was devoted to tumbling, group games, and outdoor events. Throughout the first semester, techniques were emphasized and round-robin tournaments were held.

The dance program included 60 modern dance exercises, exercise routines, modern ballet technique and simple jazz, and contemporary dancing.

A main aspect of the girls' physical education program was the annual Spring Show, routines of which were assimilated all year long.

Both the advanced dancers and the advanced tumblers devoted their time to difficult techniques and advanced routines.

Dance students Theresa Goss, Jane Smith, and Nancy Ditwiler practice a routine to be used in the annual Spring Show.

Miss Jeanne Smith awaits a response from her French I students who study basics of French grammar and conversation. The tape recorder proves to be very helpful in developing students' comprehension of foreign language.

Students Study French, German, Latin, Spanish;

Latin students Julie Levy, Leland Powell, and George Wilson examine a model of the Roman Forum with Miss Edith Reiff.

French students learn pronunciation as they listen to their teacher, Miss Lois Holtmeyer, read aloud.

Christmas carols, skits, and conversations in the four fields of the Language Department were a basic part of each language student's course of study.

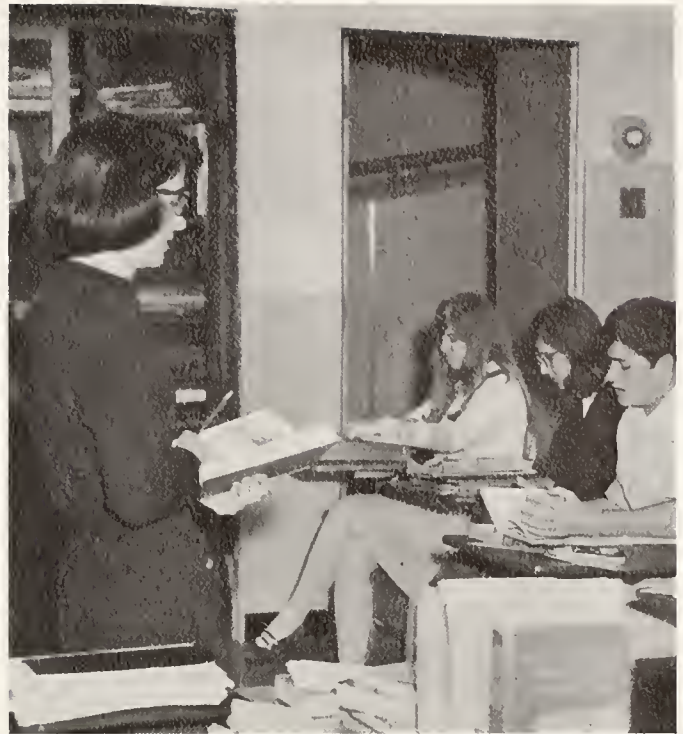

The beginning French student was faced with conjugation of verbs and the aspects of "grammaire," while the third and fourth year students read short stories, Bazin's novel Les Oberle, and "Cyrano de Bergerac" to increase comprehension.

In its third year, the German course offered practice in hearing and speaking as well as reading and writing the language. Students also studied the German land, customs, and people.

The Spanish classes placed emphasis on a basic vocabulary and on principles of grammar. In the advanced courses, poetry, stories, history, and culture were examined.

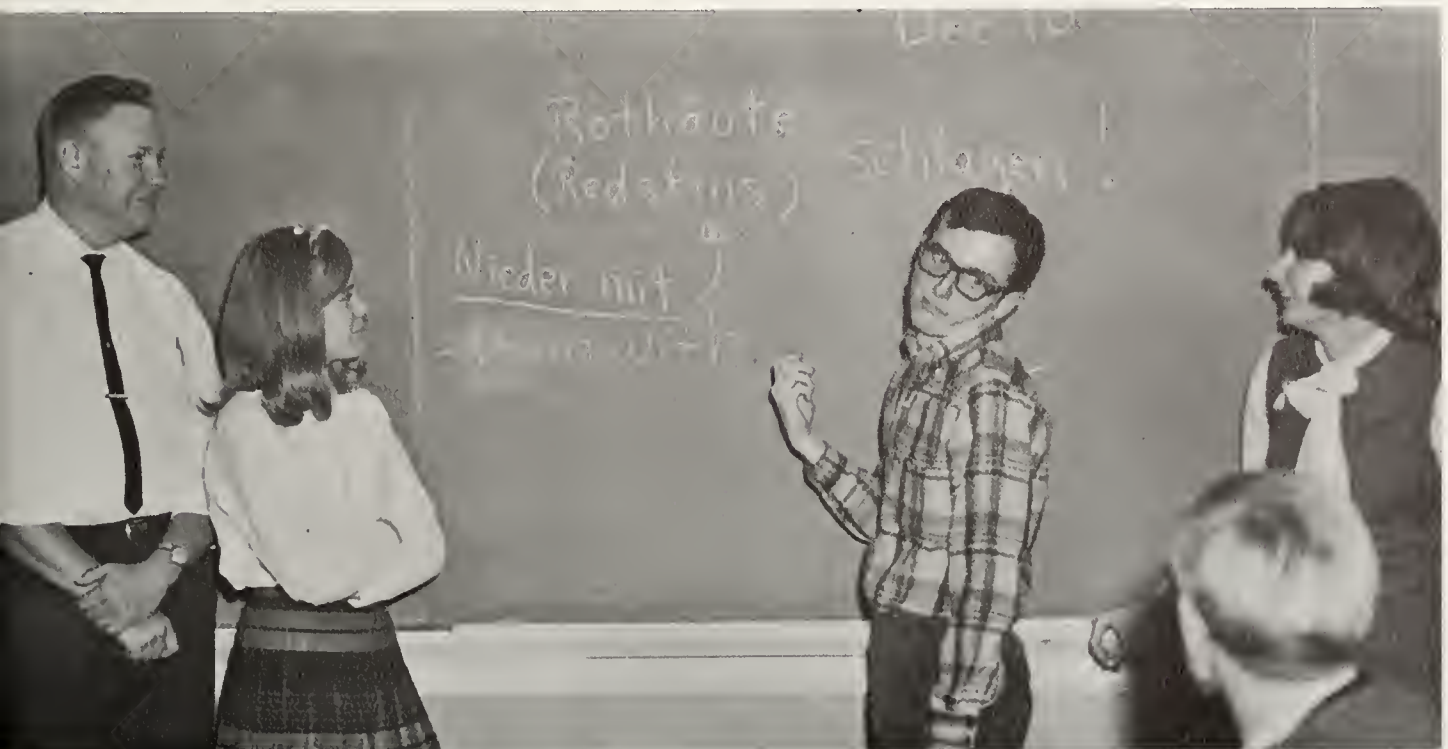

While beginning Latin scholars learned the basis for many prefixes, suffixes, and root-words in our own language, advanced students became acquainted with Caesar's "Commentaries on the Gallic Wars," Cicero's "Orations Against Cataline," and "The Aeneid" of Virgil.

In a world where an understanding of others' backgrounds and ideas is becoming increasingly important, the foreign language student is becoming prepared to do his part.

Mrs. Dorothy Brutton explains an illustration from the Spanish textbook as students prepare to read aloud.

Acquire Skills To Improve Individual Communication

John McCallister proves to classmates Rosel Gallmeister, Brook Smith, and Jody Young that he can cheer for the Archers in German or English, and his teacher, Mr. Leslie Roberts, seems quite pleased at the results.

Science Classes Learn Basis Of Scientific Method

Diligently peering into her microscope, Judy Squires is being questioned as to her findings by botany students Janet Plummer, Steve Schmidt, and Tom McCampbell. Meanwhile Jan Jones checks the height of a rapidly growing plant.

Mr. Wendell Law explains the function of a barograph, which is a type of self-recording barometer, to a physical geography class. The students also study different aspects of the earth's structure and formation.

Apply Research, Experimentation, And Observation

The Science Department, with all of its baffling formulas and laws, became an integral part of the student's life as he learned how man has satisfied his curiosity about the earth and the universe.

In physical geography the student studied the geological and meteorological structures of the earth and was thereby exposed to the scientific method without advanced techniques.

A detailed study of plant life lay in store for the student who tackled botany. He gained the facility of drawing correct conclusions by observation and experimentation. Through lectures and research, he became aware of the many miracles of nature which are the components of our world.

Physics, the foundation upon which all other sciences are based, led the student through a puzzling maze of Newton's laws, problem sets, atoms, problem sets, mirrors, and more problem sets. Although it required much concentration, this course taught the student how to reason, and prepared him for higher scientific study.

Formulas, compounds, and chemical equations busied the student during his year in chemistry. By performing experiments he became acquainted with the molecular makeup of the earth.

Split-second timing makes a big difference to Mike Phelps as he performs a physics experiment.

Working at a lab table equipped with a burette setup, chemistry student Linda Weelher waits for "another drop" of her titration before weighing. She will later move on to analyzing cations, anions, and double salts.

Home economics students Cathy Lepper, Joy Blombach, Nancy Lee, and Kathy Fabini plan on enlarging their wardrobes.

with clothing made during classes. Other home economics students study food preparation and child care.

Home Ec Classes Learn Skills Of Cooking, Sewing

Mrs. Martha Wolfgang explains pattern directions to Cherie Mertens as Mary Yergens works on a new skirt.

The Home Economics Department offered a wide-ranged course of study, designed to help the future homemaker develop and apply all phases of domestic skills.

In the clothing course, students not only learned basic sewing techniques and the use of the sewing machine, but also made actual garments. A detailed study of fabric formation and its wear and care was made. In addition, each girl was given personal tips on purchasing clothes.

Likewise in studying food preparation, students were taught to recognize the nutritional value of different foods. This basic knowledge was applied in preparing actual, well-balanced meals.

While home finance was the primary interest of the management courses, girls were allowed to work with many phases of interior decorating. The Red Cross home nursing program acquainted students with home sanitation, disease prevention and child care. Students learned to recognize signs of on-coming disease and emotional troubles in young children. The course included a brief touch on child psychology; the studies of children's mental and physical development were concluded by observation of an actual child.

This comprehensive study was extremely well planned, for it offered students practical experience in all areas of homemaking.

Industrial Arts students were given great opportunities for training to fit various occupations in the ever-growing industrial world. The modern shop laboratories were furnished with the latest equipment, and skilled instructors trained students in the necessary mechanical background.

Each student's previous experience determined the various projects that woodworking students concentrated on. They learned how to operate the jointer and planer machines along with power drills and some of the more basic tools. The finished products ranged from book ends and tables to chests and cabinets.

Metalworking students concentrated on projects such as paper weights and clamps. It was necessary for students to master the drill press and welding machines in order to perfect these objects.

Drafting students were taught lettering in preparation for the making of blueprints. Orthographic, isometric, and oblique projects were used as the students completed drawings of intricate objects.

All of these industrial arts classes gave students much useful knowledge in vocational preparation.

Woodworking students receive instructions from Mr. James Tarr in preparation for new projects.

Shop Students Work With Metal, Wood, Drafting

As drafting students Roger Ralston and Mike Childers prepare to begin drawings, Roger receives some personal instruction by Mr. Thomas Polite. Isometric, oblique, and working techniques are used by students in their drawings.

Music Department Entertains Throughout The Year

Upon his arrival at South Side, the student discovered three areas of music from which to choose.

The Vocal Department, consisting of the training, occasional, and concert choirs, performed numerous times during the year. Many were able to enjoy its Psalms-to-Showtunes program which was presented to the student body, the PTA, surrounding junior high schools, etc.

The instrumentalist found his niche in band and orchestra. After diligent practice the band entertained many with a repertoire ranging from "Mary Poppins" to Bach and endeavored to "straighten up those lines" during the athletic season for pre-game and half-time marching shows. The orchestra was not as large as in other years, but still it produced the excellent sound traditionally associated with it. For the first time in many years the Cadet Band was able to show off the results of its long working hours when it took part in the Winter Concert.

For students interested in the detailed study of music history, music appreciation offered a chance to become acquainted with many composers, their works, and the period of musical development in which they lived. Much of the course consisted of identifying famous compositions and their composers through listening to selections.

Thus, with this broad musical field in which to participate, the student had no trouble at all developing the esthetic part of his life to the fullest.

While observing Mr. Hostetler, Miss Cheryl Lau, student teacher for the band, orchestra, and choir, learns the technique for urging students to "sing out loud and strong" before leading them in a song or two.

Art student Kathy Dotson examines work done by her teacher, Mrs. Barbara Thexton, in front of a mural displaying a parade of soldiers which was done by Kelly artists. The art room is decorated throughout the year with student work.

Kelly Artists Acquire Skills; Create And Display

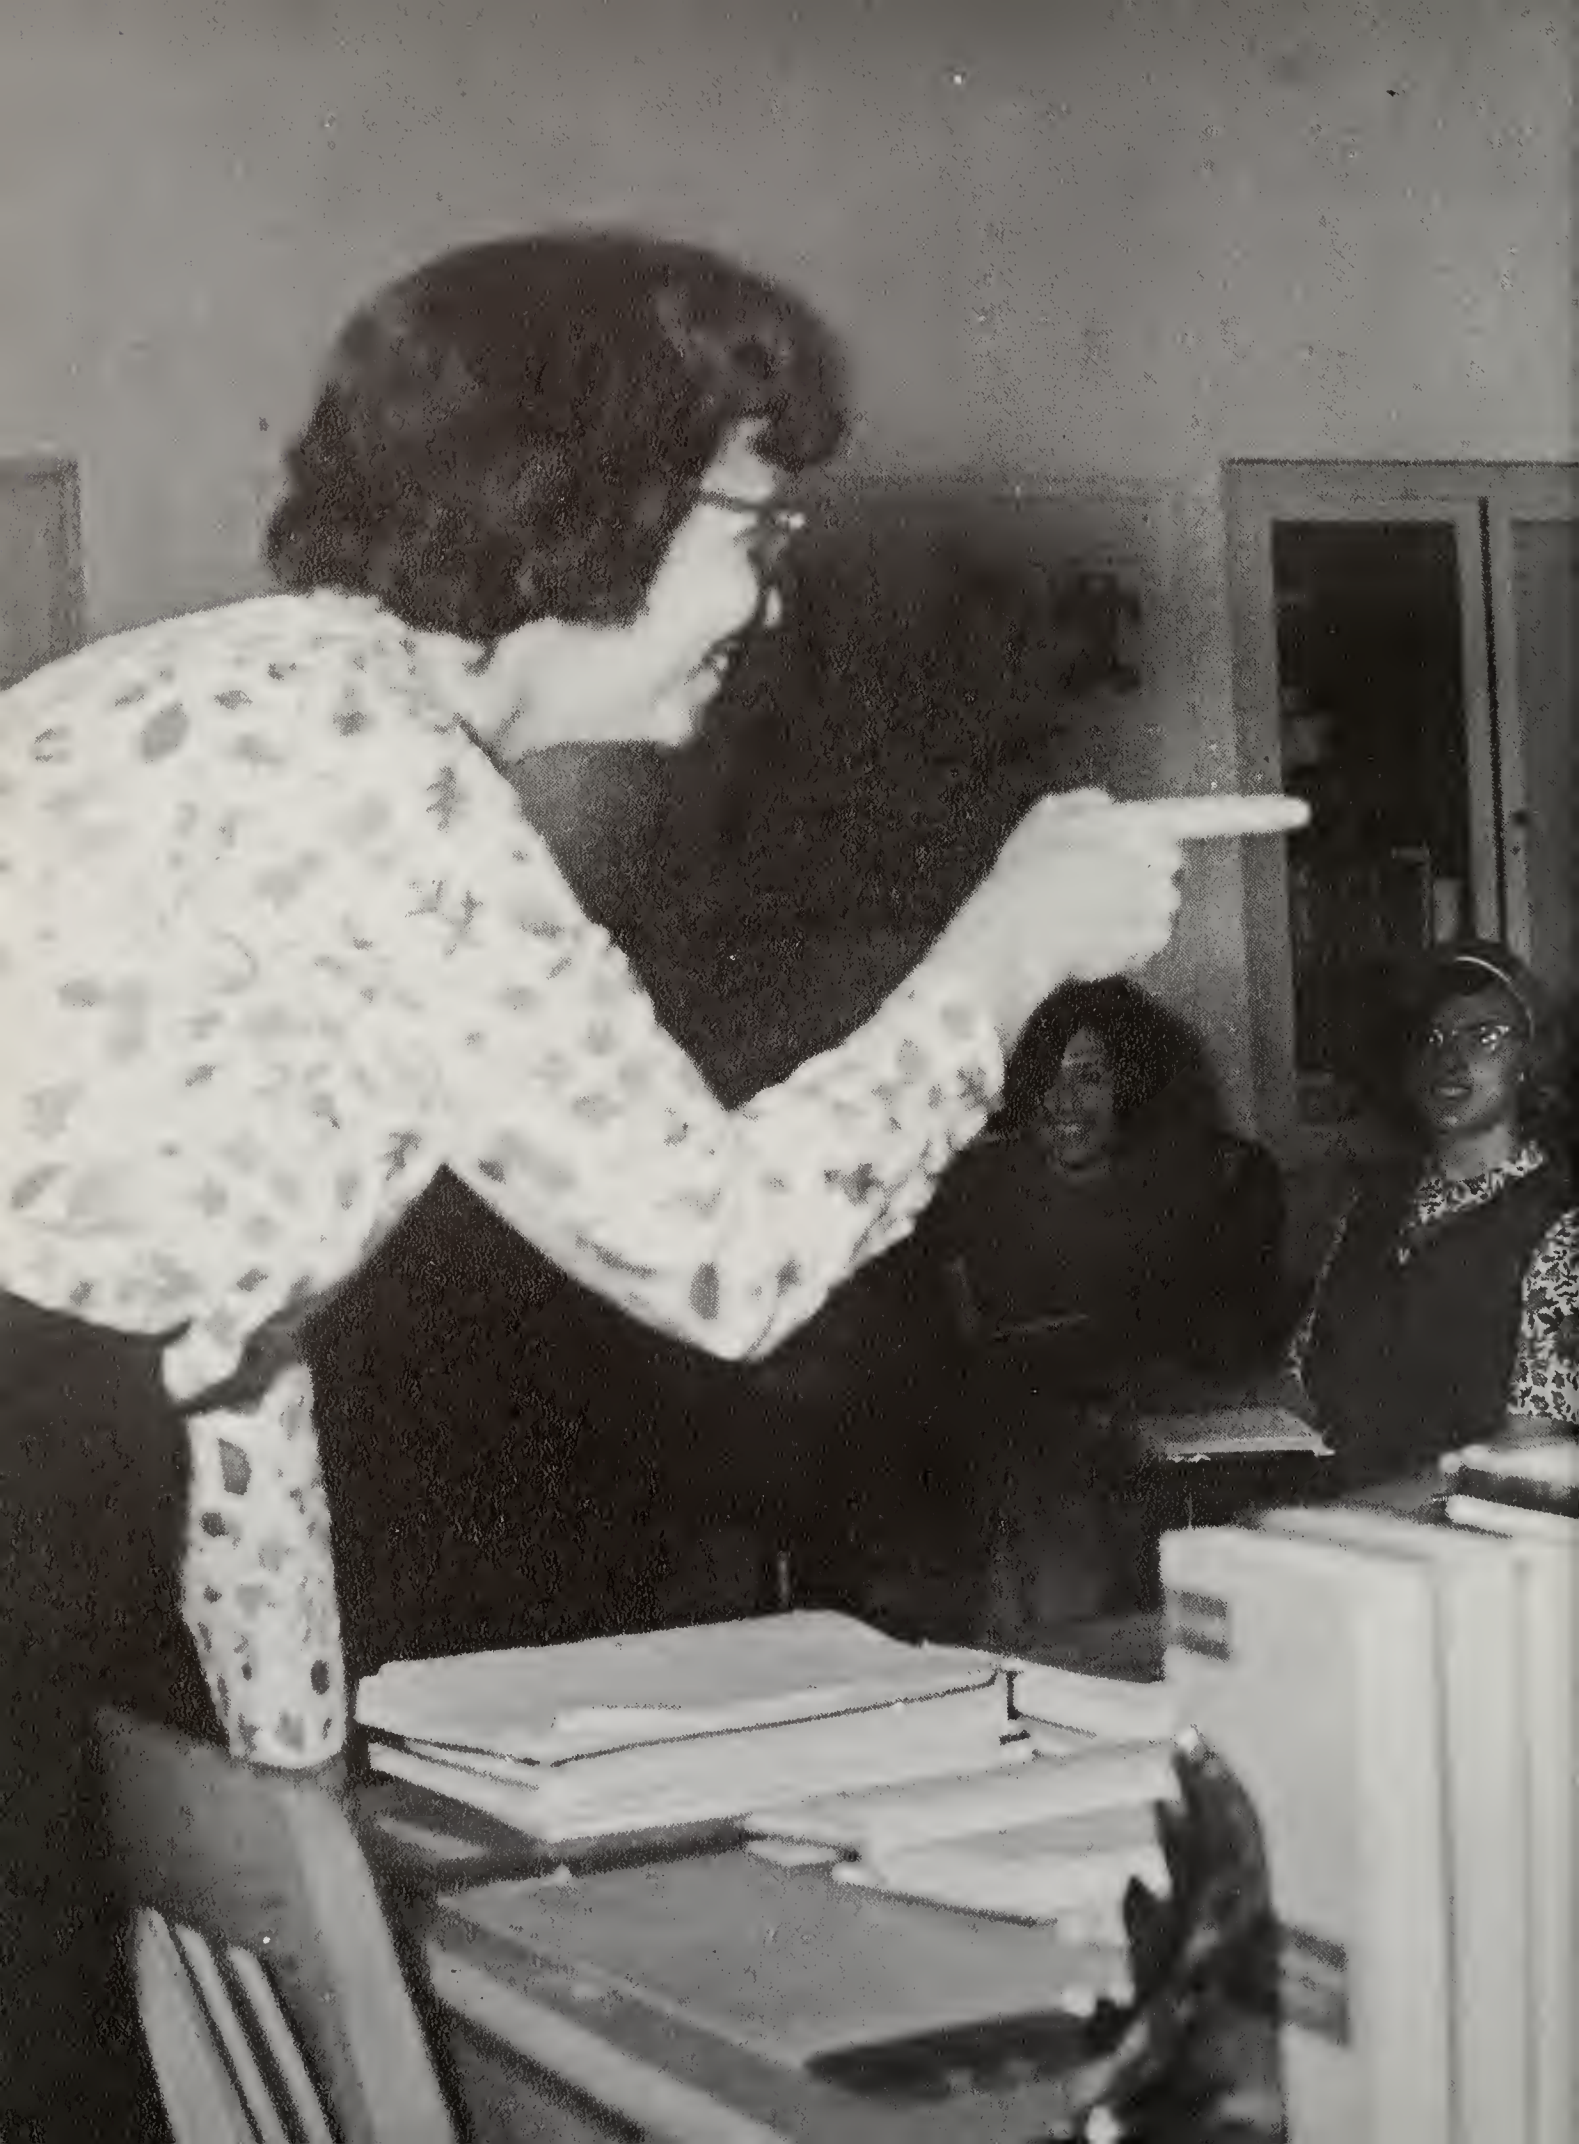

To give an understanding of the development of the creative need in man since earliest time and an awareness of the constant evolution in philosophy and style, in art as well as in other phases of man's activity, design, line, color, form, and texture, the elements of art, were used as basis for study in the art program. The first semester was devoted to two-dimensional work including holiday decorating. Nuvon panels for the windows and Christmas still-lives were designed. Three-dimensional Christmas decorating included dowel sticks and a parade of soldiers.

Advanced students continued with numbers, and letters and an abecedarian alphabet was created and displayed on the bulletin board. Art history and lectures dominated the second semester, and students proceeded to personal specializations among the fields of fashion, lettering, advertising, oil painting, and others. The art program developed in the student the ability to respond to beauty without regard to function, an understanding of himself, and an aptitude for creative thinking.

Pat Spaw works alone after school to put the finishing touches on a poster to be turned in the following day. Her work may either be displayed in the art room, as many posters are, or exhibited on the study hall bulletin board.

“Step right up! Step right up!
They’re here folks!
That tureeemendous family of stars!
Some sing, some dance, some push, some pull.”
All in it together—
Sacrificing for,
Laughing at,
Laughing with,
Leaving by three-thirty,
staying until six.
Working at springboards, with time-outs for bounce,
They stick it out.
Unrewarded?? — “Best Girl.”
Ashamed? — good reports from substitutes.
In the rut? — teachers’ parking lot.
Amid dirt and effort,
Inflation and families,
they stick it out.

Faculty

Office secretaries are Miss Edith Griswold, Mrs. Rene Nonneman, Miss Nancy Liby, and Mrs. Sylvia Christon.

Along with performing his duties as athletic director, Mr. Wayne Scott also acts as sophomore counselor.

After spending the morning as a home economics instructor, Mrs. Mary Smith counsels sophomores in the afternoons.

Our fine principal, Mr. Jack Weicker, has instilled his energetic spirit into many students throughout Archerland.

Administration Creates Challenges; Supplies Advice

South Side High School's administration is here to insure aid and development in three major areas, our Sophomore, Junior and Senior years.

It is Mr. Jack Weicker's responsibility as principal to plan the student and faculty functions. He may also advise students individually. Mr. Weicker, being an energetic man, has conveyed his feelings to students and faculty members throughout the school.

Mr. Richard E. Block's duties lie along the lines of Scholastic Aptitude Tests, Achievement Tests, averages, and class standings. He advises each senior on behavior, courses, and colleges.

Miss Pauline Van Gorder, as dean of girls, is an important part of the Archer administration. She not only advises all students, but also aids in scheduling school events and determining club activities.

Mr. Sam Jackson is the capable man in charge of guidance co-ordination. He recommends South Side students for local jobs.

Mrs. Mary Smith and Mr. Wayne Scott are responsible for the happiness of the sophomores. They work in the capacity of guidance counselors along with their respective duties as home economics instructor and athletic director.

All clerical work in the office is handled by Mrs. Sylvia Christon, Mrs. Rene Nonneman, Miss Nancy Liby, and Miss Edith Griswold.

Speaking and writing at the same time is just one of the many talents of Mr. Sam Jackson, guidance co-ordinator.

Miss Pauline Van Gorder, dean of girls, sits in her most common pose, ready for any problem.

Dean of students, Mr. Richard Block, waits to hear the questions of an eager student about college entrance.

Relaxing for an evening with fellow faculty members and their families are Mr. Marvey Knigge and Mr. Ray Hyde.

Mr. Clair Motz extends a word of advice to Archer harriers during a regular practice in the fall.

Paper and Pictures
That recall; remember
The scenes of triumph,
 The scenes of defeat?
 But what of the unseen?
 Of the season's rebirth

When the will is present
But the skill is lacking?
What of the loneliness,
 The self-denial,
 Despair?
 Failure?

Cries die;
Boy is man;
And then next year;
And then for them
Paper and Pictures
Become sterile, worthless.

Barry Worman, Tom Fleming Lead Team, City Scoring

Football is a game in which the success or failure of a play depends on the coordinated action of eleven individuals. Watching from the stands, the average fan is often aware of only one phase of the sport: the conflict between runner and tackler.

South Side's fans spent a large portion of the games cheering the actions of the two players pictured on these two pages. The fact that these two so often were the center of attention is a credit not only to them but to the line that gave them room to run.

Tom Fleming, the runner on the opposite page, and Barry Worman, on his knees after scoring three touchdowns against North Side, are two backs who carried out their duties rather well for Mr. Gernand.

Barry and Tom, both juniors, finished first and second in the city scoring battle, with the former taking the point title with 73 hard-earned tallies.

Barry was also listed on the State's Junior Honor Roll by the Associated Press, while Tom was the highest placed junior on the All-State team picked by the coaches and sports writers. Both players, needless to say, were selected to the All-City first team, along with linemen Ned Melchi and Eric Danley.

The numbers 44 and 47 are two numbers which will long be remembered by the people who watched their owners win the conflict between runner and tackler.

Archer All-City members are Steve Hower and Kerry Kaplan (mention); Eric Danley, Ned Melchi, and Barry Worman (first team); John Leakey (second team); Ron Christon (mention); Tom Fleming (first team); and Art Walker and Jim Lohman (mention). Dan Nolan and Mike Fraizer were also nominated by Mr. Gernand.

Ten Gridders Make All-City; Four On First Team

After last year's 2-6 season, a perfect record was obviously not expected of the South Side grid team. The Archers started the season by defeating Bishop Luers, 9-0, and followed with a 28-0 win over a new Dwenger squad. Central's Tigers fell next, 12-8, in a thriller at Northrop field; and South, for the first time in many years, appeared on the "well-regarded" list of the presses.

The next game, of course, was the frosting on the cake. South clobbered North Side, 42-16, and moved into the top ten rating. In a return engagement with Central, South come out on top again with a 12-6 win. Elmhurst went down, 27-14; and Huntington, on the next Friday, lost, 14-7. Madison Heights came out on the short end of a 24-6 score; and South squeezed by Central Catholic, 13-12, to go undefeated and untied.

South Side, ranked a final fifth in State, won six of its games in come-from-behind efforts, and actually went ahead in two games with less than two minutes left on the clock. The outstanding example of the team's nerve under fire was the Huntington game, which saw Tom Fleming intercept a pass and then spark an 80-yard drive to win in the last minute. The Archers outscored their opponents 181 points to 69, an indication of the tough Kelly defense. With the top backs returning, South may stay "risen" in 1966.

The single wing, the vintage offense utilized by South so potently, is fast and deceptive to a defense.

Coach Don Reichert smiles as he cuts the last strand of net after Regionals.

Everyone else is dwarfed when Willie Long is jumping against Chuck Bavis.

sent the sports predictors home slightly embarrassed. The Archers almost did it again in the Semi-State, coming from behind only to fall to the Anderson Indians in a heart-stopper, 69-68.

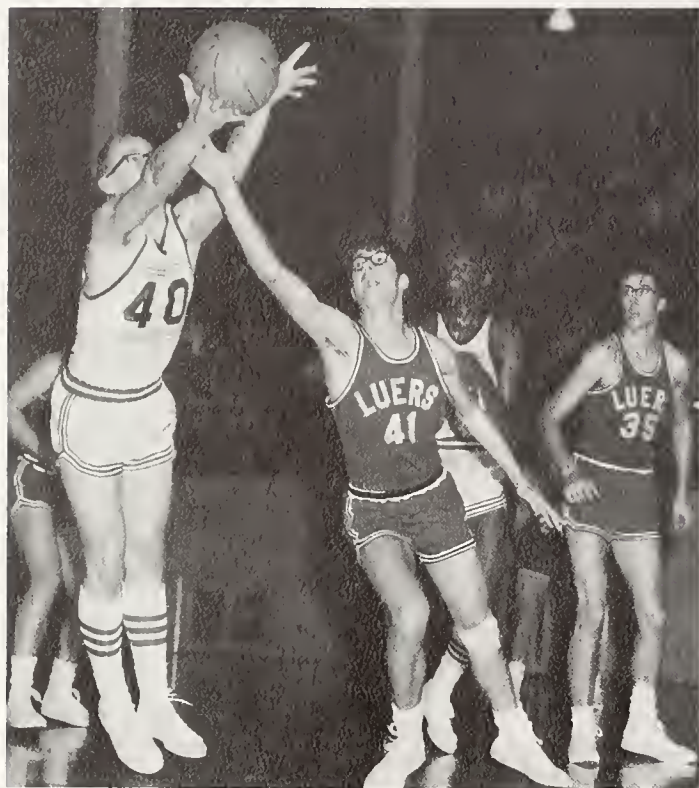

Jim Wallis looks pleased as Willie Long grabs a rebound in the Garrett game.

Dan Nolan appears to be flying high during the Eastside game at Regionals.

"Whom can I turn to?" would be an appropriate question for Chuck Nelson to ask.

Combination Of Juniors, Seniors Wins For Green

Jim Wallis, a junior forward, scored 220 points and was credited with 196 rebounds, second only to Willie Long.

Chuck Nelson, second highest scorer on the squad, drives past a North Side player toward the basket.

Pop goes springy Dan Nolan as he feeds the ball in toward the nets for two of his 116 points for the year.

Senior Bruce Lake takes careful aim at the hoop from his guard spot, where he was a consistent ball handler.

Senior guard John Leakey, the top ball handler on the team, was nominated for the State's All-Star squad.

Steve Bryant, a deadly shooter from outside and only a sophomore, will be a definite Kelly asset the next two years.

Dave Lee, a junior who developed throughout the campaign, became a consistent player for Mr. Reichert.

Mike White and Bob Horber, a pair of capable seniors, await an opportunity to see action in the tourney.

The jolly "green" stuffs a quick two points in one of the thrilling, crowd-pleasing plays of the season.

Chuck Nelson and a member of the Southport squad gaze in amazement as Willie Long reaches for a very high rebound.

People call him "Wonderful Willie" and the "Tall One" for an obvious reason, evidenced by the two pictures above which show the center at work. The one on the left is a shot that can not be stopped; on the right, a rebound nobody else had a chance for. When the dust settles on the record books, and Willie's All-City and All-State honors are forgotten, the Kelly fans will still remember scenes like these two. The player's records speak for themselves; City scoring champion with 528 points in the regular season and 137 more in the tournament; a total of 646 rebounds; a 48 per cent field goal average; 63 per cent from the charity line. There is also one other factor that has to be considered when Willie's name is mentioned. He is a junior with one year left, and things can only get better.

While Coach Don Reichart points a finger at the guilty party, amazed Porky Holt and Pres Brown ponder the situation.

As the opening tip flies up, South gets set for its first of two wins over City Series opponent North Side. This game, led by the superior rebounding of South's front line, was won 51-45, the second by a larger margin of 68-61.

South Side Finishes Behind Central In City Race

A Huntington guard is trapped as South easily stopped the slower team, 64-46.

The Archers lost two crucial games to Central, the eventual champions, and finished second in the City with an 8-2 record.

Jim Lohman goes high in an attempt to grab a rebound in the reserve game against Warsaw. Ron Lowery (13) and Steve Bryant look on helplessly as the reserve center appears to be outmanned by the Tigers' two players under the boards.

Reserve Hardwood Team Compiles Winning Mark

Those loyal basketball fans who found that getting to the games early was to their advantage based their decision on two basic attractions. The first was the promise of a better seat, and the second was the privilege of watching the exciting reserve games.

The Kelly reserves won ten games and lost six for a good season. The starting five usually consisted of five juniors, although the several sophomores on the squad were regular substitutes.

Reserve basketball began at the same time as the varsity, opening the season with Southport. The juniors lost their opener, along with the second game against Bluffton. A five-game winning streak followed with the Kellys beating Huntington, North Side, Anderson, Central Catholic, and Luers. Concordia broke the series, but the Archers got right back on the track with wins against Bishop Luers, Mishawaka, and Madison Heights. Central edged out the reserves as well as the varsity, but South won the following game with Elmhurst. Goshen and North proved too much for the Kellys, but the reserves ended the season in a blaze of glory with a win over Dwenger.

Dave Junk, Jim Lohman, Mel Rutledge, Ron Lowery, and Chad Stettler started most of the time. Dave Junk was high scorer for the season with 146 points and a very respectable 40% shooting average. Several sophomores gained valuable game experience in a special city sophomore league.

Ron Lowery blurs past the crowd as he heads down court, leaving an opposing player falling behind him.

Gary Stoops and Marvin Underwood on their knees, and Kevin Geiger and Gene Smith comprise the mile relay.

The track team opened the 1966 season with a disappointing loss to Culver on the Cadets' indoor track, 65½ to 52½. The Green-clad thinlies, though, were without the services of several top performers, who were still engaged in basketball at the time of the meet. Outstanding performances by Tom Fleming in the shot put and Marvin Underwood in the sprints topped the meet for South and were an indication of better things to come.

This year's team also received a strong boost from the runners of 1965, who compiled a winning season and saw one Archer set a Sectional record. South started by whipping Culver, 70-39, and finishing third in the first North Side Indoor Relays. Kokomo then set the Green back, but the Archers rebounded with victories over Elmhurst, Central Catholic, Huntington, Auburn, and Bishop Luers. South placed third in the Sectionals, with senior Mike Vogt setting a record in the pole vault of 13-1. Vogt went on to place in State, finishing third.

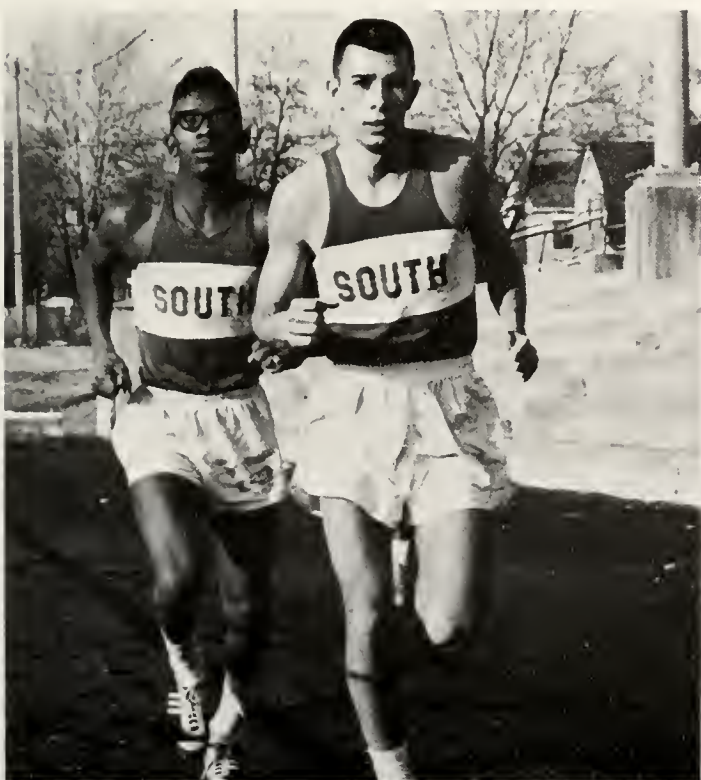

Underclassmen will have to carry the burden for Mr. Franklin Geist, the Head Track Coach, in his second year at South Side. A mile relay team of Underwood, Kevin Geiger, Gene Smith and Gary Stoops could develop into a swift group. Shot-putters Art Walker and Tom Fleming are both capable, and a flock of juniors are all contenders in the distance runs. With a strong core of juniors, the team should improve next year.

Bob Bynum, Tom Russell, and Fred Orr round the bend on the last leg of the half-mile run in the early days of the season.

Bob Clevenger and Bill Barker, the top Kelly pole vaulters, get set for the next attempt on the fiberglass.

Jimm Nidlinger leads C. L. Turner in an easy jog around the track in the effortless motions of a top miler.

Art Walker, an outstanding shot putter last year, gets set to heave the 16-pound shot over 50 feet.

Cross-Country Team Sparked By Underclass Runners

Don Sawvel leads a pack of harriers around the first bend in the Shoaff Park Sectional meet.

The 1966 Cross Country squad, under the direction of Mr. Frank Geist, compiled a winning record of ten wins and five losses. The Kelly Harriers tied for sixth in the Shoaff Park Sectional meet.

The squad tied for first in its first meet, and Jimm Nidlinger and Don Sawvel placed first and second with very respectable early—season times. Elkhart downed the Kellys in the second meet, as did Kokomo in the third. South made a comeback at the Elmhurst contest by winning three of the four individual meets.

South hosted a meet at Swinney Park late in September in which they beat Concordia and Luers but lost to North. The first annual running of the South Side Invitational was run on October second. Valpariso won the contest, with Madison Heights coming in second and South third. In the last meet of the season the Archers made a clean sweep by trouncing Central, Central Catholic, Dwenger, and Luers to win every individual contest.

The sectional performance was disappointing, but Don Sawvel (in picture at right), Tom Russell, Jim Brookhart, and Bob Bynum had their best times of the season in the run. Mr. Geist ran all sophomores and juniors in the varsity meets; and, with a strong reserve squad, the outlook for next year's team is good. The reserves won ten of fifteen meets, and there should be some good times from that group next season. Jimm Nidlinger, Don Sawvel, Jim Brookhart, Tom Russell, and Robert Bynum lettered in Cross Country this season.

Mr. Ray Hyde, coach, gives instruction to matmen Tom Brooks and Joel Grandstaff while fellow wrestlers look on. After an excellent first-year team record, Jim Brookhart and Brooks took sectionals, as Grandstaff won fourth in state.

Wrestling Team Finishes First Year Of Competition

The South Side varsity athletic roster gained another member as wrestling became a varsity sport for the first time this year. The charter team had a fine season of eleven matches, six wins, four losses, and one tie.

A wrestling match is divided into twelve weight divisions starting with 95 pounds and going on up to heavy weight, over 180 pounds. The Kelly wrestlers, in order of their weight divisions, were Dale Lord, Tim Horn, Jim Brookhart, Tom Brooks, John Peniston, Joel Grandstaff, Chris Jaisler, Steve Weinraub, Mike Wetzell, Mike Fraizer, and Mike Danley. There was no 103-pound entry.

The Bowman opened their season with Concordia and were dealt a disappointing loss. Madison Heights edged the Kellys out by two points in the second contest. In the third match the Archers began to find out what the sport was all about as they beat North Side 16-36 and then proceeded to beat Elmhurst and Lakeland. South tied Central Catholic and lost to Central, but then won three in a row with Elmhurst, North, and Concordia. Warsaw came out ahead in the last match of the season.

The Wrestlers took fourth place in the Sectional tournament with three firsts, one second, and one third. The Regionals saw the Archers in eighth place with Grandstaff placing first, Brooks third, and Peniston fourth. Grandstaff went on to take fourth in his division in the State Tournament.

Archer grappler John Peniston tries desperately to pin an unidentified opponent in a wrestling meet.

All-City Duffer Art Robson Leads Kelly Golf Team

The four stalwarts of the South Side golf team pose for an early-season picture. Left to right are Craig Alvis, Jim Lohman, Art Robson, and Stan Pfeifer. Art took All-City honors last year and is now back to lead the golfers.

South Side's par chasers should be at their peak this season with all of last year's top four golfers returning. Art Robson, Jim Lohman, Craig Alvis, and Stan Pfeifer should pace the Archers to a very successful season.

The 1965 linksmen compiled a winning record with twelve matches won, six lost, and one tie. The team placed tenth out of a field of 29 teams in the sectional tourney held at Auburn. In the city tourney, held at Lakeside, the Kellys placed fourth out of six teams.

Regular season play started with New Haven on April 4. South won the first four matches, but lost to Concordia on the fifth. The winning streak then continued up to the first match in May when the Bowmen were defeated by North and Garrett. A victory over Luers was followed by two losses and a victory over North Side and Concordia. The season's final match ended with a loss at the hands of Central Catholic.

Art Robson, who finished the season with a fine 40.89 average, was voted a member of the six-man all-city team by the boys on the city golf teams.

This year's tough 18-game schedule began on April 13 at Garrett. The Bowmen met three out-of-town teams, and played seven away contests. All home matches were played at Brookwood, Lakeside, or Elks' golf courses. The All-City match was May 7 at Brookwood, the sectional tourney May 20 at Auburn, and the state tourney May 28 in Indianapolis.

Even Arnold Palmer is envious of Art Robson's new technique for tee-ing up the ball. Stan Pfeifer, the tee, is not.

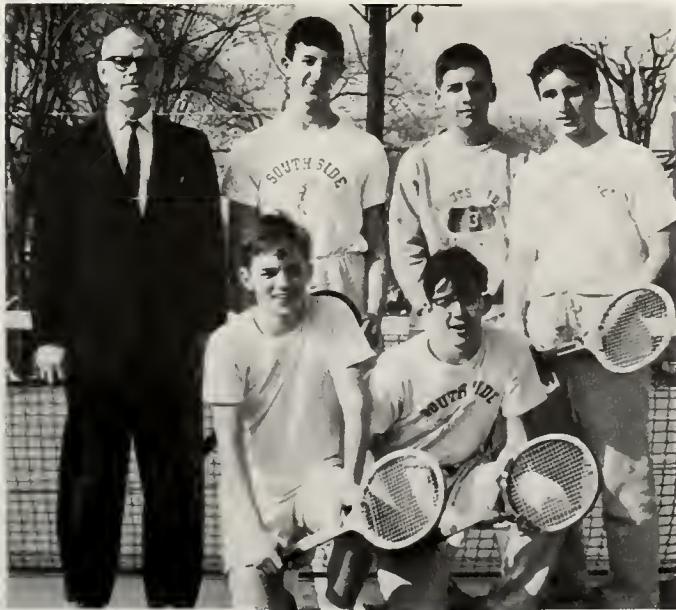

Tennis Team Takes City Net Title With 5-0 Tally

In its season finale, South Side's tennis team walloped Concordia 6-1 to run its unbeaten streak in local competition to five in a row and clinch the 1965 Fort Wayne High School Tennis Title. This left the netters with an overall record of 9-5 and a faultless 5-0 mark in city play.

This marked the first athletic championship won by a South Side team since 1962. The last sports crown was won by the Kelly golf team. The victory over the Cadets left the Concordia team with a 3-2 local mark and third place in the race. North Side took second. The Redskins' only loss came at the hands of the Archers in April; this match eventually decided the title.

Coach Everett Havens' netters began their unbeaten string with their first city match against Central on April 12. They beat the Bengals 5-2. Central Catholic was next on April 15, and again the Archers came out on top, 5-2. The Kellys faced the defending city champs North Side April 29, and they left the Redskins in the dust 6-1. Elmhurst was the next barrier; the Bowmen knocked down the Trojans, 4-3. This left Concordia as the only obstacle between South and the city crown. The Kellys won five singles and the second doubles to take the title.

Eight Archers saw varsity tennis action last season. Senior Gil Haynie played every match as the number one man. Gil played the top men from the opposing teams and also played on all of the number one doubled teams. Tom Parrish played the number two spot in all but the last three matches when some young netters moved up.

Chad Stettler winds up for a mighty tennis serve. The team hopes to win a second straight City Championship.

Intramural Program Captures Large Boys' Following

The South Side Intramural Program, one of the finest in the nation, offers fun and competition to boys in over 20 different sports. The program, now in its thirty-seventh year, is under the capable direction of Mr. Clair Motz.

Most intramural sports are divided into three weight division — light, middle, and heavy, so that the boys all have a fair chance in the competition. There are noon and after school leagues in most of the sports, primarily basketball.

The Intramural season began in the early fall with six football leagues. Bowling, which is held at the Village Bowl, also started in the fall with 17 teams entered. A weekend horseshoe and tennis tournament and a cross country running team finished out the fall activities. The cross country team held a run-off with the regular season reserve team.

Winter sports were centered around basketball, handball, volleyball, and giant volleyball. There were noon and night leagues in all the major winter sports. The annual free throw tourney had a big turnout in both the noon and night sections. Ping pong and badminton ended the winter season and began the spring activities.

A spring tennis tournament, a golf tournament, and a team and individual track and field day rounded out the year for the happy and healthy "mural men". Several sophomores earned 140 points, and several upperclassmen earned 125 points to receive their letters.

The Rebels and Contours meet in an intramural basketball contest. Wayne Workman is shown grabbing the rebound.

Steve Robinson, Mike Cassidy, Lloyd White, Greg Thompson, and Gregg Gettys are the spectators.

Athletic Participation For All Primary Emphasis

It may not result in a strike, but at least Steve George is in good form as he releases the ball toward the pins.

Noon league volleyball is liked not only by the players, but also by the lunch crowd in the gym during fifth period.

Ernie Pierce and Russell Bredemeyer enjoy a singles match on the handball court after a busy school day.

GAA Girls Compete For Fun, High-Point Awards

The GAA officer line up consists of Dianne Wolfe, point recorder; Mrs. Alice Keegan, sponsor; Linda Fairchild, vice-president; Donna Bouillon, president; and Laura Simmons, sports manager.

GAA in the Girls' Gym is the place "where the action is" as athletes of all grades meet in weekly competition every Monday after school. The object of the club—win or lose but have fun. Contesting each year in five main group tournaments—speedball, basketball, volleyball, giant volleyball, and softball—and a track day, each member works to do her best for her team while observing the rules of fair play.

Points gained from attendance, individual tournaments of tennis, table tennis, and badminton, and outside sports of bowling, skating, swimming, or hiking mount up for numerals, 300 points; letters, 1000 points; and pins, 1500 points. The outstanding senior with the greatest point accumulation is rewarded when her name is placed on the GAA point plaque.

A highlight of the GAA year is the annual mid-year banquet. This year the girls traveled to foreign lands in a program based on the theme "World Travel." Officer elections are at the end of every year. This GAA year was led by Donna Bouillon, president; Linda Fairchild, vice-president; Dianne Wolfe, point recorder; and Laura Simmons, sports manager.

Preparation for the departmental Spring Show takes the effort and time of girls in all the gym classes. The school-wide event is an outstanding date on the athletic and school calendar as it presents sports of all forms from dance to team activities.

Up, up, and in as two girls' basketball teams vie for an all-important win in a game after school.

Spring Show Tops Hours Of Work By Sophomore Girls

One of the Spring Show highlights came with the tambourine dancing by the sophomore dance classes.

This is not a group of eccentric painters; it is a group of eccentric dancers, performing for "Mary Poppins."

Advanced Dancers take a break from practice. Left to right are Rhonda Griffiths, Tudy Humphrey, Karen Shopoff, Sheryl Walker, Linda Goodman, Cindi Collins, Kathi Wise, and Judy Lyon. Pianists Doris Parke and Jan Sullivan are seated.

"Standing on the threshold of life," misty-eyed,
rejoicing,
scared,
self-confident.
Enthusiasm swells from the voices of those almost there.
Spirits lag from the voices of those,
unknowingly already here.
"Your senior year is your best."
"Take advantage of Grade 12;
it's a riot!"
"Don't get senior-itis.
Be happy; but work!"
Always looking to the almost.
Blind to the life in the Already.

Seniors

Class Advisers And Officers Spur Senior Archers

Sponsors Mr. Robert Kelly, Mr. Richard Sage, and Mrs. Mary Smith decorate a tree for the Senior Reception.

As the Senior class of 1966 bids farewell to our Alma Mater, we stop to think back on the many activities of our three years here. After the bewilderment of the first few days at a new school, our adventures at South Side began. The first year was one of mainly trying to adjust to our new working conditions. The only really big event of our Sophomore year was the Sophomore Party, "Platter Chatter".

Our Junior year found most of us still hard at work trying to keep our grades up to South's standards. We began thinking about our Senior year and planning for it. Our Junior banquet that year was called "Be Juniores" and featured our own Gangrene family. The Junior Prom highlighted this year and was called "Harbor Lights".

The Senior year began with the raising of the point system for the grading scale at South Side. This caused each person to work just that much harder to keep his grades up. All of the Seniors are planning their future careers with the utmost care. The expectations of each of us create a need to obtain all the educational knowledge this year that is possible. All three years of our South Side stay have been led by almost exactly the same officers, who have done a wonderful job.

social council member; John McCallister (rear right), social council chairman; and Darryl Jones, vice-president.

"But I am zee only General!" spouts Steve Theye DeGaulle in the Senior Banquet skit. Surrounding him are world figures

Linda and Carol Fairchild, Carter Bishop, Lou Ann Rhoads, Jeb Waldschmidt, Joann Wasson, and tour guide Sue Strehlow.

What is a club?
Organized nonsense?
Or do they have a purpose?

YES.
To train teachers to do more work,
To give students . . .
"Mr. Chairman,
I call this poem to order."
"All in favor of extra-
Curricular activities
Say aye."
"The ayes have it."
"This poem is now Adjourned."

Adviser Names Twelve To Honorary Quill And Scroll

Beginning the Quill and Scroll Banquet skit are Dianne Wolfe, Linda Young, Mike Phelps, Jan Weintraub, and Joel Salon.

Twelve more names were added to the some 100,000 members of Quill and Scroll, the International Journalism Honor Society for high school students, by Miss Anne White, publications adviser.

Seniors named to the honorary society must rank in the upper one-third of their graduating class, and have been an active member of the Times for two consecutive years or an outstanding member of the Totem major staff for one year.

Each student must have earned 5,000 points, have a good attitude, and show superior achievement in some aspect of journalism.

Members are eligible for the Rowena Harvey Award presented to an outstanding journalist on Senior Recognition Day. The trophy is given in honor of Miss Rowena Harvey, publications adviser for 37 years, and is the highest award presented by the publications department.

Each year new members are honored at the annual Quill and Scroll Banquet in the spring. Promising underclassmen provide humorous entertainment by satirizing publications members, and Miss Anne White presents Quill and Scroll pins and membership cards.

New members also receive yearly subscriptions to the Quill and Scroll Magazine and are identified on South Side's Commencement programs.

Outstanding Juniors Plan Skit For Annual Banquet

It takes Totem Editor, Steve Goldstein, and second General Manager, Nancy Shoaff, to look up the phone numbers so Totem Assistant Editor Diane Arnold and first Times General Manager Jody Young can call for banquet reservations.

First row: Karen Lobert (program chairman), Connie Roberts (president), John Charles (vice-president), Marsha Ochstein (secretary), Mary Ann Dugger (treasurer). Second row: R. N. Storey (sponsor), Carol Young, Warren Cole, Linda Trott, Martha Bailey, Jan Weintraub, Karen Pflueger, Jackie Scheele.

Wranglers Plan 'Frugal Hop,' Have Liars' Contest

Students with the desire to better their public speaking ability and compete in interscholastic speech meets joined Wranglers, as the club finished another winning season.

The club, under the leadership of Mr. Robert N. Storey, planned its meeting programs around the abilities of its members. Students who attended speech institutes last summer shared the knowledge they gained with the other members. There were numerous club contests throughout the year—inexperienced impromptu and extemporaneous; and experienced dramatic, original oratory, oratorical interpretation, humorous, and extemporaneous.

A new addition to the list this year was the Liars' Contest. At the annual Christmas party, members expressed other abilities in a talent show. The club sponsored an after-game dance, the "Frugal Hop." Members who distinguished themselves at meets were rewarded with pins, and a high-point trophy was presented at the annual banquet. The year terminated with a picnic.

The debate team which became very active this year did exceptionally well, participating in several meets, including the Indiana High School Debators' Conference. Several students attended the National Forensic League Student Congress and the Purdue Legislative Assembly.

Braving the cold wee morning hours, Wrangler members sally gaily forth to win a speech meet.

Philo Sells Stickers, Discusses Feminine Careers

First row: Rosel Gallmeister (sergeant-at-arms), Diana Wickliffe (secretary), Mary Ann Simmons (president), Toya O'Hora (program chairman), Sue Strehlow (treasurer), Sue Parker (vice-president). Second row: Sandy Caston, Judy Goodman, Trina Tieman, Rosalie Shanebeck, Barb Odier, Cathy Coplen, Judy Nesbit, Sherry Ream, Pat Dowling, Liz Kenwood, Vicki Shaffer, Patty Klingerman, Cheryl Bauer, Regi Leffers, Carol Wamsley, Joann Wasson, Sharon Miller, Sue Broxon. Third row: Anne Knipstein, Janet Hines, Andrea LoVerde, Arlette Stocksdale, Sue Bowland, Patt LaPointe, Nancy Ertzinger, Jan McRae, Cindy Craw, Barb Williams, Carole Bruck, Nancy Burns, Melinda Watson, Becky Teague, Diane Arnold, Sue

Philo members Carolyn Glass, Carole Bruck, Vicki Shaffer, Sue Minier, Nancy Burns, Anne Knipstein, Regi Leffers, Linda Austin, and Darlene Raquet perform a Christmas skit.

"Careers for Women" was the theme of the Philathian Literary Society (Philo) for this year. In the meeting programs, the members heard women from the community speak about their professions.

Beginning the year was the advertising manager of WANE-TV, who spoke of the opportunities in her field. Two former South Side students, Miss Jeannie Carroll and Miss Karen Simmons, addressed the club.

In the field of politics, Mrs. Celia Fay talked about her life in the "men's world," and Mrs. Alan Lord spoke of her work with the League of Women Voters. As an added attraction, Miss Carol Edgar, social studies teacher, entertained the girls with her accordion.

At their annual orientation program and party for sophomore girls, the officers of Philo presented a skit entitled "My Fair Kelly." The club's after-game dance, "The Lost Resort", was a huge success. A creative writing festival gave the members a chance to express their talents. As a money-making project, the club sold "Archer" stickers.

The St. Patrick's Day banquet was highlighted by Mr. Edgar O'Hora's humorous speech about Irish folklore. At the spring picnic, the new officers were installed.

A mother-daughter tea in May recognized outstanding seniors with certificates of honor. On Recognition Day the Ella Jo Reed Cup was presented to the member who earned the most points for service to Philo.

Meterite Helps At Quarter-Century Club Banquet;

Mrs. Emschwiler (second from right) samples goodies to be served at one of the Meterite meetings.

Meterite, the club for sophomore and first-semester junior girls with at least a B- average in English, completed a "literary" year as one of the oldest and largest clubs at South Side.

Through their programs, the members fulfilled the purpose of the club, to foster and increase interest in the creative aspects of English. Sponsor Miss Lois Holtmeyer aided the girls in carrying out the many activities.

A recognition tea to which all mothers were invited was given when the juniors graduated and the new officers assumed their duties. This was a chance to recognize with a cup the girl with the greatest number of points, Jenny Strehlow. Also at this time those juniors having accumulated 350 or more points were awarded certificates and charms. The two sophomores with the highest number of points were presented with ribbons.

During the second semester the club had another poetry contest. The big project, however, was its annual program for the Quarter-Century Club Banquet. On Recognition Day the Susan K. Peck award was given to the sophomore girl who had shown the most literary ability.

South Side's Lettermen's Club, sponsored by Mr. George Davis, consists of those boys who have earned a letter in one of the many types of athletics. Highlighted by the canned foods drive, the club completed another successful year as a part of the Archer extracurricular activities.

Because the group is mainly social, it was not necessary to meet more often than once a month. In these meetings, however, the boys accomplished much to carry out their main purpose, character and conduct at South Side.

The year's calendar of events began with the Lettermen's Potluck. The delicious dinner informally ended the football and began the basketball season.

To aid the needy of Fort Wayne, the club conducted its canned goods collection. The homeroom competition to see which could bring in the greatest number of cans was spirited by a group of chemistry students, "Chemini 7," which collected several hundred cans in one evening. The generosity of the city and the desire of each homeroom to win made the can drive profitable and successful for the Lettermen.

At the Lettermen's annual dance after the South Side-Snyder game, the girls in attendance elected club President John Leakey "King Kelly." The year terminated with the Lettermen's banquet. As guests of the faculty, all Kelly Lettermen were honored for their quite fruitful athletic season.

Mike Frazier, Steve Rhinehart, and Stan Pfeiffer help with the food at the Lettermen's annual Can Drive.

The Cheerblock, a club for girls only, was added to the roster of South Side organizations this year. From the beginning it was definitely stated that this club was not to carry on the cheering entirely but to encourage the student body to yell with the cheerleaders at basketball games. Coordinated by Mrs. Phyllis Bear and Mrs. Dorothy Arnold, the group added needed spirit to the home games. Attending practices, every varsity home game, and every South Side city series game was mandatory. Julie Inskeep was voted captain of the group.

Appearing at practices every Thursday and co-operating with the cheerblock were the cheerleaders. These girls, under the direction of Miss Jeanne Smith, performed at Veterans' Hospital and sponsored an after-game dance, "Brain Storm," in addition to appearing at pep sessions and games.

The reserve squad led the yells for all reserve basketball games and helped the varsity leaders get pep from the fans. Mary Ann Simmons led the varsity group, who cheered for all varsity football and basketball games.

Both bodies of girls were awarded on Recognition Day with charms and pins according to years of service.

The cheerblock, led by the cheerleaders, adds co-ordination to the yelling of the fans at a home basketball game.

Cheerleaders With Cheerblock Enliven Pep Sessions

Varsity cheerleaders are Debbie Rothberg, Edie Hughes, Toya O'Hora, Mary Ann Simmons, captain; and Sally Reitdorf.

Janeen Badgely, Ann Spear, Bev Gouloff, Tricia Hunt, and Linda Draper cheer the reserve basketball team on to victory.

Safety Council, Boosters, Ushers Serve South Side

Safety Council officers Jeff Goltz, Holly Trier, Ridge Robson, and Sue Keith meet with their sponsor, Miss Carol Edgar.

With Mr. LaVerne Harader (sponsor) are Booster Club members Susan Rose, Kay Davis, Phil Andrews, Ken Gantz, and Pat Hart.

Ushering at all home basketball games are Greg Hinshaw, David Weinreb, and Larry King.

The Safety Council, under the leadership of Jeff Goltz, president; Sue Keith, vice-president; Holly Trier, secretary-treasurer; and Ridge Robson, sergeant-at-arms, sponsored "Safety Sam Week" to bring to light some of the hazards present in the school building, sold chocolate bars to raise money, and presented a movie for the entire student body entitled "Mechanized Death." The purpose of the Safety Council, an arm of the Allen County Teenage Safety Council, was to promote safety in the school and home.

Members of the Booster Club were seen selling popcorn, candy, and soda pop at all home football and basketball games this year. They were able to show their loyalty to the school by the amount of time they devoted to serving South Side fans. Sponsored by Mr. LaVerne Harader, they have been able to raise enough money to buy and care for the cheerleaders' uniforms. They have also paid the cheerleaders' bus fares for away games and conferences, helped maintain the school, and aided the Quarter-Century Club. For two years' service the members receive a gold pin and season tickets to all of South's athletic events.

Another group in the limelight were the ushers, appearing at every basketball game. Headed by Mr. Richard Sage, the members of the organization directed the fans to their seats and aided late-comers in finding seats.

Perhaps the largest organization in the school, the Service Club functioned quite smoothly with no regular meetings, no officers, and no fund-raising projects. In fact, the only time that the service workers got together was at their annual potluck, at which time Nancy Cooper and Mary Ann Simmons were voted the recipients of the Randolph Jacobs Trophy for their outstanding record of service to the school.

The club, sponsored by Mr. Sam Jackson, was comprised of all students who devoted at least one period per day to service for some teacher. For their work the students received pins: the first pin for 200 hours, the second for 300, and the third for 400 points gained.

The duties of the service workers varied from taking attendance to recording grades to supervising the chem lab. Some teachers offered other benefits to service workers, such as parties and points for choir pins and projectionists.

The boys of the Audio-Visual office who took charge of the equipment therein were members of the Projectionist Club. Their duties involved helping teachers conduct classtime movies and providing for sharing tape recorders and record players.

Occasionally while using the wide variety of pieces of audio-visual equipment, some of the teachers became distressed because of the complexity of running one of the pieces. Mr. Ralph Boling, sponsor of the Audio-Visual aid organization, is irreplaceable in instances like these.

Projectionists Dave Frump and Alex Early unearth the mysteries of some new audio-visual aid.

"Creating, maintaining, and extending throughout the home, school, and community high standards of Christian character" is the purpose of the Hi-Y Club. It is primarily a service organization serving the school, the YMCA, and the community.

Any junior or senior boy at South Side who subscribes to the purposes of Hi-Y and who completes his pre-induction work and tests may join. These active members completed many school service projects during the year, including posting the Top Scholars List, providing the sound system for the cafeteria, organizing the football bonfire celebration, conducting a sophomore orientation, and publishing the Hi-Y Directory.

Services to the YMCA consisted of making donations to the YMCA World Service Fund and purchasing equipment for Camp Potawatami. Reconstructing the Landing and helping with the Mayor's Youth Commission were among the community services performed by the Hi-Y.

The organization sponsored bus trips to all away basketball games this year, and another enjoyable project was the annual Queen of Hearts Dance. These, along with many other "well-done" jobs have made this a successful year for the Hi-Y Club.

Speakers, Field Trips Highlight Art Club Program

Juanita Foellinger, Debby Enscher, and Linda Saurer pool their creative abilities in Art Club.

The Art Club, under the guidance of Mrs. Barbara Thexton, provided South Side students with an opportunity for experimenting in various phases of art in an informal atmosphere. Through guest speakers, projects, and reports, the members of the club were able to gain insight into the world of art as it is related to everyday life.

The meetings were conducted every other week, and they consisted of lively discussion and critical-reviews of all the members' works. Several of these meetings were highlighted by guest speakers. Early in the year, Mr. John Ross of the Fort Wayne Public Library Art Department spoke to the club; and, later, the members enjoyed a lecture on textiles by Mrs. Jay Hauselman.

Sometimes, field trips and parties replaced the regular meetings. During the Christmas season, there was a guided tour and party at the Fort Wayne Art Museum. Later, the group had its annual spring party.

The club stressed work in all phases of art, from oil and watercolor painting to paper collages and colored sand designs. All members of the club were encouraged to participate in local scholarship contests. During the year, selected works of the members were put on display in the study hall and cafeteria. At the end of the year, the best works were sold at the yearly auction.

Members Play Bridge Games; Latin Club Has Feast

Those South Side students interested in bridge were given an opportunity to learn to play contract bridge and improve their playing skills in the Bridge Club. Sponsored by Miss Lutie Young and Miss Dorothy Graham, the club has just completed its third year.

Under the guidance of these two mentors, the members were able to meet each Thursday in the cafeteria to enjoy an hour of instruction and competition. The basic concepts of the game were presented to the inexperienced members of the group. The more experienced pupils were helped to understand more clearly the complexities of the game.

In the spring a tournament took place, the winners declared on the basis of highest point totals. Thus the members were able to put their skill to a real test. It was hoped that through these weekly meetings and games all of the members would gain more enjoyment in playing bridge and become more competent devotees of the game.

The highlight of the year for the Latin Club was its annual banquet for club members and Latin students. Societas Latina was composed of former or present Latin students interested in classical Latin material. Funds for the banquet were raised by the sale of book covers.

Pondering their next plays carefully, Bridge Club members Lynn Horstman and Carol Landsdowne study their cards.

Red Cross Helps Others; Cinema Guild Sees Films

The purpose of South Side's Red Cross club is many-fold: to help people by learning the ways of kindness, by earning the wealth that can be shared with others, by caring for others, by reaching out across our own country to others around the world, and by teaching the ways of freedom.

With this goal in mind the members, under the leadership of Mr. John Arnold, gave freely of their time and efforts in their many service projects. They learned the true meaning of "do unto others" through such activities as partying with "adopted" Mongoloid girls at the State School; visiting and Christmas caroling at the Allen County Old People's Home; making party favors and placemats for the State School, Veterans' Hospital, and Johnny Appleseed School; and, as part of a city-wide project, assembling comfort kits for South Vietnamese children.

Cinema Guild, one of South's youngest clubs, has just completed its second year with a membership increase to seventy-five. One of the most popular organizations at school, the group is coordinated by Margaret Johnson, Ron Hitzeman, and Scott Longardner.

With the aid of Mrs. Mildred Luse, they were able to bring five excellent movies to the school, "The Song of Bernadette," "Sunrise," "On the Waterfront," "Johnny Belinda," and "You Can't Take it With You" opened to the whole school.

Organizers Ron Hitzeman and Scott Longardner consult Mrs. Luse on a future Cinema Guild meeting.

Boys', Girls' Rifle Clubs Turn Out Sharpshooters

"If at first you don't succeed . . ." is the only thought which can console sharpshooters Cathy Fredrick, Darlene Todd, Kablam!—and another target has fallen victim to a bullet shot by a member of the Girls' or Boys' Rifle Clubs. During the past year the interested marksmen practiced diligently until they were able to shoot with amazing accuracy.

Open to any boy in good standing at South Side, the Boys' Rifle Club spent Monday afternoons in South's basement rifle range learning to handle firearms. Under the excellent guidance of Mr. Arthur Peffley, the members strove to promote sportsmanship; improve their marksmanship; and instill among themselves range discipline, the first rule to observe when on the rifle range.

At the beginning of the year, through their weekly drills, the boys confined their activities to furthering their shooting abilities. During the season they engaged in extramural rifle competition. At the end of the year outstanding members were recognized by the National Rifle Association.

The Girls' Rifle Club, under the expert direction of Mr. Alfred Hemmer, worked with the same purposes in mind as their companion club. They learned about the different parts of a gun, how to manipulate them, and how to care for them. During the weekly practices the girls learned to shoot and became sharpshooters.

After having become acquainted with firearms and after becoming at ease in their firing habits, the members of both clubs derived much enjoyment and pleasure from this popular and demanding sport.

Student Librarians Aid Staff, Earn Service Awards

Under the watchful guidance of Mrs. Alice Deputy and Mrs. Elizabeth Squires, the members of the Library Club checked out books, collected fines, ran errands, took inventory, and reshelved books during the year.

Although the club had no regular meetings, there were officers—Linda Wheeler, president; Carolyn Glass, vice-president; Karen Graves, treasurer; and Chris Elmore, point recorder. There was also a point system whereby the members would earn pins. For 75 hours of service, a bronze pin was awarded; for 150 hours, a silver pin; and for 300 hours, a gold pin. Any additional hours of service went toward a service club pin.

At Christmastime the girls had a decorating party to spruce up the library for that festive season. Earlier in the year several members attended a conference for student librarians at Indiana University. To end their year on a gay note, the club had a picnic in the spring.

Through their experiences as student librarians, these girls learned the value of the library and the satisfaction of working with the great literature of the world.

Student librarians Cindy Gidley, Marsha Meyers, and Libby Edwards perform one of their many duties of checking in library books before 8 o'clock in the morning. Perhaps later they will file or return books to the shelves.

Acting Talent, Creative Ability Shown By Students

In a scene from the Thanksgiving Assembly, Greg Scott gets a tongue-lashing from Barb Smith.

Mr. Don Locke and Mr. David Cowdrey have a pow wow with Jan Jones and Kay Hansen.

Assemblies Workshop, under the direction of Mr. David Cowdrey and Mr. Don Locke, once again presented their two annual programs, both without adequate equipment or a stage.

The members of the organization began the year by cleaning the dusty storerooms, straightening up the props, and labeling boxes of costumes.

In just a few days, the stage craft groups raided the newly-cleaned storeroom in search of various props for the Thanksgiving Assembly.

The Thanksgiving Assembly portrayed both the spirit and tradition of Thanksgiving. The landing of the Pilgrims, a war scene, a Thanksgiving dinner, and beatniks in a coffee house showed the students the true meaning of the season.

The second performance by members of this club was at Christmastime. Script writers developed a very clever idea, and after the stagecraft crews had decorated the gym, the story began. In the comedy presentation, Santa Claus' elves went on strike.

In all, the members of Assemblies Workshop found this a really fun and creative year.

Everything from the family circle at Thanksgiving to breaking Santa's toys in a rage provided a most creative and fun-filled year.

Greg Scott, as Seymour, urges Joann Wasson and the other elves to break Santa's Christmas toys.

Junior Academy Visits Parkview Hospital, I. T. T.

The Junior Academy of Science, with the leadership of Tom Warfel, Stan Hamilton, Melinda Watson, and John Stiles, brought together those students interested in the different fields of science by means of several separate sections—Chemistry, Physics, Botany, Astronomy, and Mathematics.

Each section was to work independently on projects concerning that specific group, then make demonstrations and reports to the group as a whole.

The main group visited the Parkview Hospital, where they toured the lab, learning about the process of blood analysis and methods of determining the proper medication for certain patients. The x-ray department was also the object of their discovery, the cobalt treatment room being one of the highlights of their trip.

Traveling to I.T.&T., they were especially interested in the role that Fort Wayne plant has played in the success of the series of weather satellites sent aloft by the United States.

Throughout the year there were movies shown pertinent to the several phases of science. The final effort of the year was a picnic for all members.

Jeff Levy curls up to peruse his Pegasus, marveling at the talent displayed by the students' entries.

In its sixth year, South Side's literary magazine, the Pegasus, presented a large and complete anthology of original works of the student body.

All the entries in the Pegasus were written by the students themselves, either in English class or outside of school. The works were first checked by the English teachers, then submitted to the editor-in-chief or Miss Anne White for final judging. After selections were made the articles were given to the Pegasus staff for proofreading.

Following all final decisions, the remainder of the staff began their work: the make-up had to be planned, the art work added, and pictures taken.

Although contributions were not limited to any particular field of literature, more poetry was entered than any other type. The subject matter chosen reflected deep thought on the part of the Pegasus staff as well as by students.

The title of the magazine was taken from an old Roman myth about a winged horse. The horse, with a kick of his feet, created a fountain that served as an inspiration to poets.

With the combined efforts of the students and the public, the Pegasus continues to be one of the few literary magazines on the high school level.

Totem Staff Plans Layouts; Crops Pictures, Writes

Concentrating their efforts on producing the forty-fourth edition of the Totem were editor Steve Goldstein and assistant editor Diane Arnold. The editors began preparing for their important jobs by serving as junior editors last year. During the summer they attended the Indiana University High School Journalism Institute. While there, they learned the special techniques necessary to produce a yearbook.

The Totem was divided into seven sections, each under the control of an editor and several assistants. Each person spent many hours planning layouts, writing headlines, composing copy, and deciding on the placement of pictures. In addition, senior pictures had to be arranged, underclass pictures identified, and cut-lines written for every picture.

Avoiding the many pitfalls that could have spelled disaster, the Totem staff managed to get the completed book to the press on time.

Last year's Totem, under the guidance of Miss Anne White, won several awards, including an "All-American" rating by the National Scholastic Press Association. Staff members hope that this year's Totem will more than follow in the steps of previous editions.

The patience, perseverance, and cooperation of the hard-working photographers, greatly added to the successful completion of a good yearbook.

Trying to avoid the many pitfalls that could have spelled out disaster, the Totem editors managed to get the book to the press in good time for an early delivery.

Totem editor Steve Goldstein asks Diana Wickliffe about the progress of the organizations section due soon.

Juniors editors Linnea Kettler, Liffy Keck, and Ann Bonner run over the techniques of publishing a good yearbook.

Thursday morn and all is well, as a somewhat disheveled but empty Times room appears after the previous night.

The South Side Times finished the 1965-66 year still in possession of the title of the largest high school newspaper in the world. Faculty advisor Miss Anne White and general managers Jody Young, Nancy Shoaff, and Andrea Zala this year set a new style for other school papers to follow by successfully revising the page layout.

Many hard hours were spent by the copy-reading, feature, editorial, news, photography, layout, and business staffs in changing from seven columns to six columns on the news, sports, and feature pages and five columns on the editorial page. The editors and copy readers especially were plagued with problems concerning headline sizes.

In the end, however, their perseverance paid off; and the Times was awarded an International Honor Rating and the George H. Gallup Award from the Quill and Scroll Society; and the All-American Award from the National School Press Association.

Three different major staffs prepared the weekly newspaper during the year, giving more students greater opportunity to assume head positions and become experienced in journalism. Along with the minor Times workers numbered about 275, making it the largest extra-curricular activity at South Side.

As always, the basis for the Times was carried out through the long and tiring work of the circulation managers as a successful campaign ended in November.

Caroling in the halls at Christmastime is an annual event thoroughly enjoyed by the senior members of the choir.

The attention of the training chorus is centered on the band as they await their turn to perform at the Winter Concert.

The concert choir of South Side, directed by Mr. Lester Hostetler and composed of seventy-nine members, participated in many outside engagements as well as various programs in the school.

This year was highlighted by performing in spring and winter concerts and four music assemblies, plus participating in the holiday assemblies. Requests came to the music department from many outside sources, including sororities, churches, and civic groups.

To promote interest in music in future South Siders, the choir traveled to the junior highs feeding South. Christmastime was probably the most enjoyable and certainly the busiest time of the year, for the group caroled in the school halls, at Lincoln Bank, at Hall's Gas House, and at the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Hostetler chose selections varying from sacred music to spirituals to classical arrangements to popular stage and screen scores in order to maintain interest in both the choir and the audience.

The choir was fortunate this year in being able to purchase new dresses for the girls and new ties and cumberbunds for the boys. The new outfits added good looks to the group and were worn at nearly all away engagements.

The choir ends the year with performances at the graduation ceremonies—Ivy Day, Commencement, and Baccalaureate.

The band, which played both for school functions and at several places outside of school, featured several types of music.

Under the direction of Mr. Robert Drummond, the band, along with the orchestra, presented numerous concerts. The scores from musicals such as "South Pacific," "Mary Poppins," and "H.M.S. Pinafore" highlighted the performances, as did classical music by Johann Bach and lively marches by John Philip Sousa.

The percussion group was featured in such numbers as "Percussion Espagnole," and arrangements of other selections allowed this section to show off its talents.

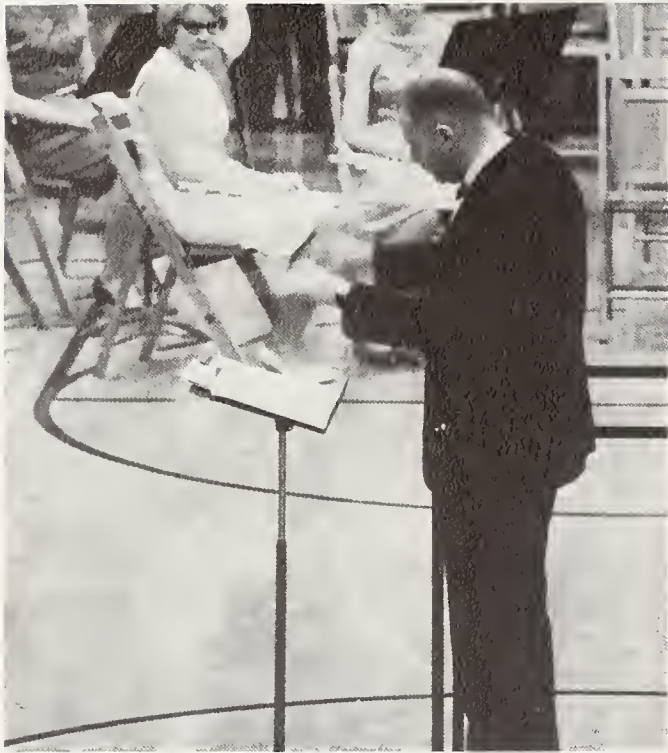

Spring and winter concerts and music assemblies kept the band busy, as did playing for all pep sessions and home football and basketball games. The group presented half-time shows along with the Majorettes.

Members of the band participated in community activities. Many ushered for the Fort Wayne Philharmonic Orchestra, the Community Concerts, and played in the All-City Band. Several students entered state and local music contests.

In addition, the band presented several concerts at junior high schools. Performances on Ivy Day and for the Commencement exercises rounded out the year's activities.

Practice makes perfect, as the diligent expressions on the faces of these band members indicate.

Director Robert T. Drummond warms up the orchestra before the Winter Concert on December 3.

Hours of diligent practice went into presenting the lovely music played by members of the orchestra. Such selections as "Lygia," by Miklos Bosza from the movie "Quo Vadis," "Concerto Number 1 in G Major," by Georg Handel, and "Komm, Susser Tod," by Johann Sebastian Bach were presented at the two concerts and four music assemblies in which the orchestra performed.

Members of the orchestra were featured on different occasions. Sophomore Bonnie Houtz, accompanied by Sharon Miller, played "Concerto in A Minor," by Vivaldi on her violin; and "Clair de Lune" by Debussy featured Karen Lobert on the piano.

Special events of the ever-busy orchestra included visits to the junior high schools. The group, along with members of the band, ended their year's activities with performances at the graduation exercises.

To reward senior members of the orchestra, pins for three years of participation were given on Recognition Day, as well as an award for an outstanding member of the instrumental music department.

Outstanding members were chosen to participate with the All-City Orchestra throughout the year. On April 26 the orchestra provided entertainment for all Archers.

Majorettes Salute Kelly Flags At Athletic Events

Practicing their techniques with the swing flags are Majorettes Joy Turney, Judi Ross, Linda Seibert, and Sue Reed (front).

No game—be it basketball or football—or parade would be complete without the color and flourish of fanfare added by the majorettes who present and salute the flags. This year's able group of girls, under the sponsorship of Mr. Robert Drummond, instrumental music teacher, exhibited their talents whenever the occasion warranted.

The girls who joined the group were taught skills of proper marching and baton twirling. In the fall of the year when the weather permitted and marching was part of the game festivities, these girls had several opportunities to display their ability with the baton and swing flags.

Before games, the girls presented the United States flag, the Indiana state flag, the South Side school flag, and the music department flag in various formations. They were the means by which the Archers formally saluted the opposing school during pre-game ceremonies. While songs were played, intricate steps were performed and the majorettes were in part responsible for the excitement and fun at half-time.

The group was always on the lookout for potential performers and after three years' participation a pin was presented on Recognition Day to the girls for their service. The majorettes' final official function of the year was participation in the Ivy Day Parade.

Perfecting their part of the before-game and half-time shows takes much time and co-ordination from the Majorettes.

Fourth row: Carol Crandall, Katie Edington, Connie Markey, Sharon Verner, Claire Stepnitz, Pat Smith, Theresa Marschan, Larita Lillard. Throughout the year these girls made everything from pies to skirts and dresses while becoming homemakers.

Vesta Members Learn About Home, School, Community

Officers Marilyn Reidenbach, Janet Stetler, Sharon Merz, Carole Bruck, and Diana Thornburg plan Vesta dance.

Vesta Club, an organization for girls interested in home economics, was named for "Vesta," the Roman goddess of the hearth.

Any girl in South Side is eligible to join. Vesta follows three objectives: "To promote appreciation of the home, family, and oneself; to encourage interest in homemaking; and to train girls for leadership in home, school, and community affairs."

During the year, various speakers gave talks relating to home economics. Several programs on grooming and personal appearance were presented. Two fashion shows, in the spring and fall, highlighted the year's activities.

Through the efforts of their sponsor, Mrs. Matha Wolfgang, many outside activities were planned for the year. Among these was the sale of cookbooks containing the favorite recipes of home economics teachers. As a conclusion to the year's activities, a Mother-Daughter Tea took place in May.

The first of Vesta's two annual projects was the preparation of Christmas favors for the children at State School, on which the members spent much time and effort. The second was the sponsorship of the George Washington Dance. Members of the club nominated a slate of boys for the title of George Washington. The students attending the dance then voted and the winner chopped down the cherry tree and led the pupils in a minuet.

Mr. Roland Smith led the History Club in lively debates and discussions this year in an attempt to stimulate interest and broaden the knowledge of history for the members of the club. This new organization was open for membership to all students at South Side who were interested and willing to participate in the club's activities.

The club members wrote a constitution, had two elections, and gave several reports on phases of history which most interested them. Through this opportunity for research in history, discussion, and debate on controversial historical topics, it was hoped that a greater appreciation and interest for history in general would be instilled in the participating students.

To enlighten its members about topics of political and social interest to Americans was the aim of the Political Science Club. Many heated arguments arose as a result of programs about the John Birch Society, the meaning and history of conservatism and liberalism, and a slide presentation of life in Russia.

With the guidance of Mr. Ralph Bogardus, however, the arguments were an aid in forming each individual's political opinions because members were able to view both sides and thus have a full picture of the conflict.

Scurrying,
Involved in school,
Not yet peeking at their futures,
Filling their lives with Noise
 Color,
 Excitement,
That is not There.
They
Do not remain innocent children,
Nor yet become spiteful young adults,
But are like barren deserts
 — With few and small oases —
That must be crossed.
Still they possess
Great Knowledge.
Of what?

Class Of 1967 Officers Plan Social Events Of Year

Junior sponsors, Mr. Al Hemmer, Miss Carol Edgar, Miss Lois Holtmeyer, and Mr. Robert Petty, attend "Junior Junction."

The Class of 1967 is now at the junction, the "Junior Junction" of its years at South Side. The carefree sophomore days are over, but the hectic senior year has not yet begun. The junior year was filled with botany, physics, and math problems, themes, verbals, and conjugations. Juniors spent hours collecting reference material, detailing outlines, and typing final drafts for their research papers. Endless hours of homework, the PSAT, and the NMSQT all aided the development of rewarding goals and future careers.

While decorating for the Junior Banquet and the Junior Prom, memories of the sophomore party, "Soph Seas" lingered in the minds of the happy juniors. They were busy getting driver's licenses in order to transport themselves to eventful games, dances, and parties. Yet the "middle class" was never too busy to help cheer the teams to victory, share in yell contest winnings, or contribute to the annual canned food drive.

Although the junior year was not all pleasure, it was very rewarding and fulfilling. Good grades and bad grades, everyday disappointments, extra-curricular activities, and regular classroom discussions hopefully built the Class of 1967 into the future leaders of tomorrow.

Dynamic Class Of 1968 Selects Class Officers

Recalling days of 1964 are sophomore class sponsors Miss Lutie Young, Mr. Roland Smith, and Miss Helen Pohlmeier.

The beginning is always difficult, but for 664 sophomores, it was just the start of three prosperous years at South Side.

The faculty struck up the welcoming band at the class orientation last June and again in the fall. Then Philo and Hi-Y presented another view in their annual informal gatherings in the cafeteria.

Striving to better themselves every day, sophomores studied "Julius Caesar", Silas Marner, new math, and modern dance. Outside interests centered around various club and school activities, the Spring Show, class campaigns and parties, and sports events.

Pep session skits, wood-stacking contests, the canned-food collection, the class party, after-game dances, and the talent show are memories long to be remembered. Responsibilities, challenges, and new friends will be cherished and not soon forgotten. As the next two years slip away, sophomores will recall that "the flowers of tomorrow are in the seeds of today."

Leading the sophomores throughout the year in making decisions and organizing class events were their officers Warren Cole, president; Jeff Green, vice-president; Bev Gouloff, secretary-treasurer; Mark Smith, social council chairman; and Cathy Fredrick and Linda Reichert, social council members.

Aiding in these decisions and plans were class sponsors Miss Lutie Young, Mr. Roland Smith, and Miss Helen Pohlmeier.

Sophomores Discover Big Challenges; Try To Set

In order to get acquainted with South Side, fellow students, and faculty, sophomores attended an orientation early in the fall. Speeches concerning rules and regulations were featured at the valuable and interesting session.

A bit of conversation in center hall brings a tiring day to an end for Sophomore Bev Gouloff and her friends.

Tricia Hunt and Ridge Robson, two tired but happy sophomores, return from a rousing basketball game on the Hi-Y bus.

Year Ends With Triumphs, Losses, Gains, Rewards

Holding ground for the mighty South Side Archers are the husky reserve football team members. Although someone might get stepped on, the referee finds nothing wrong with the play; so the team continues to sweep in more yardage.

Year Produces Depressed, Radiant, Contented Faces

Throughout this book, faces have told the story of the school year 1965 - 1966 at South Side High School. There have been laughing ones, frightened ones, scowling ones, painted ones, and a few stunned ones. They all tell the story of a year in which we have learned, won, lost, struggled, been right, been wrong, procrastinated, hurried, and delighted in the activities of our day-by-day high school life.

And now, as the Graduating Class of 1966 leaves South Side, it looks back on the three years gone by and ahead to the coming ones. This class, as those preceding it, leaves something with South—not just an ivy plant, but the spirit of the class.

The sophomores and juniors, too, will soon forget the ordinary experiences of this year, but the highlights embodied in this book will long remain in their minds.

In closing, we would like to thank Watters Studio, Fort Wayne Engraving Company, Fort Wayne Type-setting Company, Keefer Printing Company, the S. K. Smith Cover Company, Mrs. Barbara Thexton and our very special adviser, Miss Anne White.
